Ask Quit Claim Deed From City For B'way Strip

When Present Street Line of Broadway Was Approved in 1879 it Narrowed Street 11 Feet on Upper End—Property Owners Seek Release of Strip of Land Between Old and New Street Line—Referred to Committee—Other Matters.

When the common council on July 11, 1879, adopted the survey of Union avenue—now Broadway—made in 1874 by D. T. Van Buren, it established the street line on Broadway as it now exists, which narrows the street between St. James street and Elmendorf street by from eleven feet at the widest point to about two feet at the other end. Property owners between St. James street and Elmendorf street on Broadway are now asking the city to give them a release or a quitclaim deed for this narrow strip of land lying between the old street line and the new street line as it now exists.

Corporation Counsel's Report.

The matter was first brought to the attention of the common council several weeks ago when Henry Klein, Harris Brown and N. B. Gross, who had purchased a Broadway property near St. James street, asked the council to give them a release. The request was referred to Corporation Counsel Harry H. Flemming.

Tuesday evening at the regular monthly meeting of the council the corporation counsel submitted a lengthy report showing what steps had been taken by the city authorities in years past to establish the street line on Broadway.

City Has Title.

In closing his report Corporation Counsel Flemming stated: "The available records indicate that the title to the parcel for street purposes is in the city. Should the common council decide to dispose of it the only manner in which the city can divest itself of the title is by conveyance by deed for a reasonable consideration."

Is Narrow Strip of Land.

The strip of land on Broadway between St. James street and Elmendorf street, between the old street line and the line approved by the common council in 1879, is a narrow strip 11.83 feet wide near St. James street and gradually growing narrower as it approaches Elmendorf street where in front of the Diehl store it is about two feet in width.

Attorney Van Wagonen Speaks.

The various property owners on Broadway between St. James street and Elmendorf street were represented at Tuesday evening's meeting and the privilege of the floor was extended them by the council.

Attorney V. B. Van Wagonen was the first speaker. He said he represented Mrs. Diehl and the Dolson property adjoining. The northern boundary line, said he, has been like it is for the past fifty years. Legally the city line goes to the northern line of Broadway as it is today. Technically the city may go back to the old line of Broadway, but the property owners stood firmly on the line of Broadway as it exists today. He said that all equity was with the property owners and all law. The property owners had title by adverse possession. The common council by its own act established the present line of Broadway and relinquished all title or interest in the strip of land lying between the new and the old line.

Attorney Van Wagonen said on behalf of his clients he asked that they be given a release or a quit claim deed. He made it plain that the property owners to avoid legal difficulties were ready to give the city a "reasonable consideration."

"Cloud On the Title."

He said that as the matter now stood there was a "cloud on the title" and to clear the title the property owners desired the city to give them the release requested.

Fowler Appeared For Reben.

Judge Joseph M. Fowler said he appeared for Max L. Reben. It was because of Mr. Reben's proposed purchase of a property on Broadway that the question had arisen. Mr. Reben had applied to a local savings bank for a loan, and before it was given the title experts of the bank had gone over the title and in making the search had discovered that this strip of land lay between the old line and the present line of Broadway, and had refused to give title until "this cloud on the title" was removed.

Judge Fowler said that in the old days the street line on Broadway was very irregular with some properties standing out on the old line while others set back from the line. The common council in the old days had the problem of either forcing those who stood close to the old line back or compelling those who stood back to move forward. To avoid trouble the survey was made establishing the present line and it had been approved and adopted by the common council in 1879.

Others Who Spoke.

Attorney Henry Klein said that he would like to have it recorded that he appeared in behalf of himself and his fellow property owners.

N. B. Gross said that when he purchased the property he asked for the street line to be furnished him before he rebuilt the property and the city authorities had furnished

Family Troubles Aired In Court

Mrs. Samuel DeGroat Has Her Husband Arrested Charging Non-Support and Interesting Developments Occur—Mrs. Fanning Has Husband Arrested.

Samuel DeGroat was arrested by the police Tuesday on a warrant sworn out by his wife, Frances DeGroat, of No. 49 Cedar street, who charged her husband with non-support, and at the hearing this morning before Judge Shufeldt such interesting developments occurred that the judge adjourned the hearing to September 12 in order to thresh the matter out and ordered both husband and wife to have what witnesses they desired present at that time. The DeGroats have one child, an infant. The husband has been paying his wife $5 a week toward the support of herself and child.

DeGroat informed Judge Shufeldt that he had tried to live with his wife but she made life miserable for him and he was now living with his sister on Foxhall avenue. He said that his wife had her brother, Fred Zates, living with her and also another woman.

At that juncture a young man sitting in the rear of the court room arose and said: "Your Honor, can I say a word?"

"Are you interested in this case?" asked the court.

"I am," replied the young man as he left his seat and approached the bench. He said his name was Fred Brink and that his wife would not stay home with him but spent several days a week at the home of Mrs. DeGroat. "If she don't want to live with me but stay where she is I am satisfied," he declared.

DeGroat accused his wife of misbehavior and she reciprocated.

Frank Fanning Arrested.

Frank Fanning was arrested on complaint of his wife, Irene, who resides at 238 East Strand. The Fannings have three small children. The wife said her husband neglected to provide for them. Fanning said he was not guilty of the charge and the case was held open.

Pool Room Case Adjourned.

The trial of Edward Smythe, Charles Oberkirch and John Carter on a charge of assaulting Steven Kaslich with pool cues in the pool room on the top floor of the Clermont Building on Wall street recently was adjourned to September 28.

Speeder Fined $20.

Nathan Fine of Newburgh, arrested for speeding 39 miles an hour on Tuesday, was fined $20 on his plea of guilty.

Fail to Locate Missing Teacher

Authorities Inclined to Doubt Kidnapping Story—Disappeared Last Wednesday in Johnson City.

Buffalo, Sept. 7 (AP).—Frankly skeptical that Miss Jessie McClure, 21 year old missing Corning school teacher, was being held for ransom here by kidnappers as told in a letter to relatives, police today directed their search to public and private hospitals.

Miss McClure disappeared last Wednesday while shopping in Johnson City where she and her mother, Mrs. Johnnie McClure, were visiting Duncan McClure, the young woman's uncle.

The uncle yesterday received an unsigned letter dated Buffalo, September 3, which stated Miss McClure had been kidnapped and was being held for ransom, but would not be harmed.

The police theory that the kidnapping story is a hoax received support from Acting Police Chief Holmes of Johnson City who said that "from all appearances it looks to me as though the young woman either wrote the letter herself or obtained the assistance of some other person as a means of throwing the searchers off the track."

Chief Holmes pointed to the absence of a demand for a specified sum of money as tending toward this theory. "Kidnappers," he said, "don't work that way."

The mother, a widow, who lives at Lindley, near Corning, said she was at a loss to understand why her daughter should be the victim of kidnappers. She expressed her belief, however, that the daughter was alive. The uncle is reported to have engaged private detectives to come here from Rochester to take up the search.

Relatives said Miss McClure had no serious love affairs. She had signed a contract to teach again this year in Corning.

Mrs. Schebelski Jailed.

Mrs. Mary Schebelski, who was arrested Monday on Meadow street charged with disorderly conduct, pleaded guilty today in police court and was sentenced to the county jail for fifteen days by Judge Shufeldt.

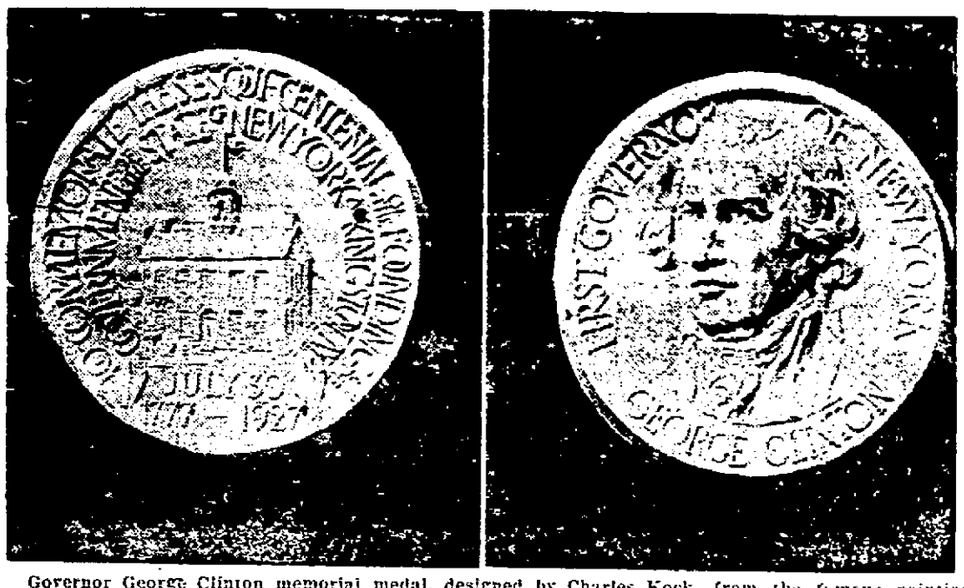
George Clinton Memorial Medal Struck for Kingston Sesqui-Centennial



Governor George Clinton memorial medal, designed by Charles Kock, from the famous painting of George Clinton by John Vanderlyn to be presented to state officials at the Sesquicentennial in Kingston, the first State Capitol, during the program on September 10th commemorating the inauguration of political beginnings in 1777 when Clinton, the first State Executive, was inaugurated, the first State Supreme Court was assembled, the first State Legislature met and the first Constitution was adopted. The medal is in bronze and is two and a half inches in diameter. Later it will be presented to every museum, library and historical society in the state by the 150th Anniversary Committee of the American Revolution.

Albany, Sept. 7.—Working upon the suggestion of Judge A. T. Clearwater, Honorary Chairman of the Kingston Sesquicentennial, the Executive Committee for the 150th Anniversary of the American Revolution in New York State, has authorized a unique Clinton memorial medal two and a half inches in diameter to be struck in bronze. This will be ready for distribution not only to officials of the state on September 10th at Kingston but also thereafter to museums, libraries, and historical societies throughout the state.

The commission to execute the model for the Clinton medal was given by the State Sesquicentennial Committee to the well-known sculptor, Charles Kock, of New York city, who designed the various bronzes in front of the Education Building at Albany and perhaps is best known for the figure of the North American Indian in the battle ground park of Old Fort George at Lake George.

The medal bears a copy of what is said to be the best painting of George Clinton at his maturity by John Vanderlyn. The relief on the medal shows Clinton in the uniform of a Major-general of the Continental army. Under the picture are the words "George Clinton" and about the upper part of the medal are the words "First Governor of New York."

In the center of the reverse side of the medal is a picture of the old Kingston Court House in which New York State Government was created at Kingston in 1777. It was in front of this building that New York State's first executive, George Clinton, was inaugurated on July 30. Under the picture of the Court House are the words "July 30, 1777-1927." In a double circle about the Court House are the words "To Commemorate the Sesquicentennial of the Founding of the Government of the State of New York at Kingston."

The George Clinton medal is now being struck and will be in readiness, according to Dr. A. C. Flick, Chairman of the 150th Anniversary Celebration of the American Revolution, in plenty of time for the State Sesqui at Kingston September 10th. The ceremonies of laying the cornerstone of the Kingston State Museum will form an impressive part of the day's activities. Services will be held at Clinton's Tomb at which Dr. Flick is the speaker of the hour.

At noon a luncheon will be served to honored guests by the city of Kingston. At two o'clock the speaking program at the Kingston Driving Park begins with an address by Governor Alfred E. Smith, followed by speeches on the part of former United States Senator Wadsworth, Speaker of the Assembly Joseph A. McGinnies, and Senator John Knight. the historical drama will be staged in front of the grand stand at the Kingston Driving Park at 3:30 and will depict the political beginnings of New York State.

Old Glory Sends SOS, Ships Rush to Rescue

Plane Bound For Rome Was Apparently Five Hundred Miles East-Northeast of the Tip of Newfoundland When Frantic Radio Calls Came—Liner Searches 30 Mile Area Without Results.

New York, Sept. 7 (AP).—A wireless S. O. S. from the monoplane Old Glory, sent out during the early morning hours of darkness, when she apparently was some 500 miles east-northeast of the tip of Newfoundland on her trip from Old Orchard, Maine, to Rome, sent liners to her assistance.

Old Glory's cry for help, as picked up by several transatlantic ships and relayed to the Radio Corporation of America, was sent out at 8:30 o'clock today, Greenwich mean time. Beyond the fact that her crew of three adventurous aviators—Lloyd Bertaud, James D. Hill and Philip Payne—were in the grip of some tragedy over the trackless wastes of water, no details were given.

Within a few minutes of receipt of the S. O. S. several ships, obeying the immutable law of the seas, were rushing under full steam towards the estimated position of the transatlantic airplane.

The liner, Transylvania, westward bound, appeared to be nearer Old Glory than any other ship. The steamer reported that she was 83 miles away.

"The Transylvania is only 83 miles from the plane and owing to the pitch darkness it will be difficult to see the plane," read a laconic message from the captain of the steamer. "As soon as picked up will report to you. Fresh westerly winds and sea."

At the same time the steamships California, Carmania and Lapland, all westward bound to the states, reported picking up the S O S. At least the Carmania and the Lapland were believed to be in the general vicinity of Old Glory, although further away than the Transylvania.

Navy Also Helps.

Not only were great liners doing their utmost to bear aid to Old Glory, but the navy department broadcast the news of the airplane's plight to all naval vessels of the Atlantic fleet.

Foremost in the minds of all during the hours of anxiety was the question of whether Old Glory had suffered the same fate as her sister ship, the St. Raphael, lost recently in an effort to fly the westward course of the Atlantic with the Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim and two pilots aboard. Fresh in memory, too, was the fate of the Dallas Spirit, which never was heard from after sending out an S O S on her flight over the Pacific from San Francisco to Honolulu.

There was hope, however, for Old Glory in the fact that she carried a collapsible rubber boat, which could be inflated were conditions favorable. But what had happened to the great silver and gold plane, which started out so proudly on the first air voyage to the Italian capital, was problematical.

Search Without Results.

New York, Sept. 7 (AP).—The liner Transylvania reported reaching the position where Old Glory was thought to have come down and searched a 30 mile area without results. Captain Bone said he was proceeding further with the search.

The captain reported to the Cunard line today: "Have searched area thirty miles this position without results. Now proceeding to point in which airplane was sighted by California this morning. Have advised all ships."

The California sent a message at 11:57 o'clock last night saying she had sighted the plane about 250 miles east of Cape Race, with everything appearing to be all right.

Captain Bone's message was timed 14:30 Greenwich mean time, or 9:30 a. m. eastern standard time but was not received by the Cunard line until 11:43 a. m. He gave his position as 49.33 north latitude, 41.10 west longitude, which is about 500 miles off Newfoundland.

Still Grappling For Drowned man

Grapplers Fail to Locate Body of Harry R. Thomas, Who Was Drowned off Kingston Point—Musicians Witnessed Tragedy.

Grapplers have not yet been able to locate the body of Harry R. Thomas, wealthy retired business man of Tarrytown, who was drowned off Kingston Point early Tuesday morning while he was trying to board his yacht Bimbo, anchored about 150 feet from the shore near the Rondout Yacht Club.

After listening to the story of the tragedy as told by Miss Sadie Heist of Yonkers his guest on the yacht, and also questioning George Barton of Tarrytown and J. A. Houser of Poughkeepsie, relatives of the drowned man, local police decided not to hold anyone in connection with the tragedy. Coroner Norman Conner, however, will make a thorough investigation if the body is recovered.

Four members of Zucca's orchestra, which played for the dance at the Rondout Yacht Club, which Thomas and Miss Heist attended earlier in the evening, witnessed the tragedy. One of the four stated that they had thrown the headlights of their automobile out on the river in order to watch the progress of Thomas and Miss Heist as they rowed from the yacht club to their yacht.

Swells of a passing steamer made it rather difficult for Thomas to row, it was said. Miss Heist, as soon as they reached the yacht, climbed up the ladder on the side to the deck. She then held the rope on the rowboat while Thomas started to climb up. As he started to climb the ladder the boat apparently went out from under him, he lost his grip on the ladder and fell over backwards, it was said.

Miss Heist immediately called for help and the four orchestra members, securing a motor boat, went out to the yacht. They circled the yacht a number of times but were unable to locate the body. Miss Heist said that he had gone down almost immediately despite her efforts to bring the rowboat around so that he could grab hold of it.

Both Barton and Houser, after making arrangements to have the body grappled for, left this city Tuesday afternoon. The men who were grappling for the body stated that they had been left very few instructions.

A man who lives in a house boat close to the scene of the tragedy had been hired earlier in the morning to watch the yacht. He stated that one of the men who had hired him had gone out with him to the yacht to obtain some personal belongings of Miss Heist. He found the compartments locked, however, and returned to shore stating that he would come back as soon as he obtained a key. He did not return on Tuesday. The yacht is still anchored in the river.

According to a government registration book at the Rondout Yacht Club the Bimbo on August 31, 1926, was registered in the name of Thomas F. Firth of Philadelphia.

Murder Trial Ends Suddenly

State's Case Collapses When the Chief Witness Against the Man Suddenly Changes His Testimony—Jury Instructed to Render "Not Guilty" Verdict.

Tampa, Fla., Sept. 7 (AP).—With dramatic suddenness that left a crowded court room dazed, Leonard Thompson was cleared of charges of murder in circuit court here yesterday, without offering a word of testimony in his own behalf.

Thompson was on trial charged with slaying Wallace and Ralph Merrill, aged 3 and 11 years respectively, and two state witnesses had testified when the state's case collapsed.

Ben F. Levins, now under death sentence in connection with the slaying of Lonnie Merrill, his wife, the two children mentioned, and a third child, was the third state witness.

"I have been praying for two days for strength to come up here and tell the truth and now I'm going to do it," Levins said. "I went to bed the night those people were killed out there. I didn't go near the house and everything I said before was because I was afraid for my life.

"I don't know anything about it. I don't know anything about Thompson, because I wasn't there myself."

Levins's declaration left the spectators breathless, as it was upon Levins's testimony that a conviction of Thompson was expected.

After efforts of G. B. Parkhill, state's attorney, failed to shake Levins from his steadfast denial of any knowledge of the crime, Circuit Judge Robles ordered the case nolle prossed and instructed the jury to "write a verdict of not guilty against this man."

Four Men Dead After Real Estate Dispute Over $500

Peace Conference Called to Settle Real Estate Dispute Turns Into Shooting Fracas—One Man Held on Murder Charge.

New York, Sept. 7 (AP).—The fourth death from a shooting, which came as a climax to a conference over a $500 real estate transaction in a law office on West 44th street yesterday, occurred today. Robert McGrority, 26 year old stage manager, died in Bellevue Hospital of injuries received when he was struck by the body of Victor J. Steinberg as it hurtled from the ninth floor to the street.

In a rain of bullets that terminated the conference, one man was killed and another fatally wounded. A third human target in the fusillade plunged nine stories to his death, his body striking and injuring two pedestrians in West 44th street.

Charles M. Bernstein, 39, of Baltimore, a women's dress dealer and real estate operator, who surrendered to the police last night, six hours after the shooting, was named as the killer. He refused to make a statement. The dead are:

Victor J. Steinberg, 29, lawyer.

Charles Herskowitz, 38, real estate broker.

Henry C. Cohen, 40 lawyer.

Robert McGrority, 29, stage manager, suffered a fracture of the spine when he was struck by Steinberg's boby in its nine story plunge, and John Steinlauf, 19, postal clerk, was shocked and bruised as he was struck by the body when it caromed off McGrority.

Before he died Cohen named Bernstein as the killer and said a dispute over a real estate deal was responsible.

Bernstein came from Baltimore yesterday to meet Steinberg, his attorney, Herskowitz, who had leased two Sixth avenue loft buildings for him, and Cohen, counsel for Herskowitz. The conference was supposed to be an attempt to settle out of court two law suits for $500 each, one brought for commission by Herskowitz and another brought by Hermann Heidenreich, lessee of the loft buildings, who was suing to recover for alleged falsification of rents.

Heidenreich was not at the conference as the four other men gathered in Steinberg's private office in the suite of Bijur, Herts & Steinberg on the ninth floor of the sixteen story building. Harold H. Herts, a law associate of Steinberg, a telephone operator and a stenographer were in an adjoining office. They were not molested.

Bernstein was quarrelsome from the start of the deliberations, Cohen said, and suddenly whipped out a pistol and began to shoot, picking Herskowitz as the first target. Herskowitz was found dead in the hallway. Cohen was pinned in his chair by a bullet wound in the back, and died several hours later. Steinberg, attempting to escape the storm of bullets, plunged headlong out a window. Bernstein escaped down the stairs.

In the midst of a hunt that extended to Baltimore for him, he entered a police station in Washington Heights, three miles from the scene of the shooting. He was accompanied by an attorney.

"I'm the man you're looking for, I guess," he told the desk lieutenant. "I'm wanted for the shooting this afternoon."

Message to U. S. From the French

Brought by Ambassador Paul Claudel at West Point—Reads Message from Briand—France Will Welcome Legionnaires With Open Arms.

West Point, N. Y., Sept. 7 (AP).—A message of brotherhood to America from Foreign Minister Briand of France, on the occasion of the LaFayette and battle of the Marne celebrations was read here Tuesday by Ambassador Paul Claudel of France.

Speaking on his own account Ambassador Claudel stressed the friendship between the United States and France, which, he said, began with LaFayette, was continued with Pershing and as a token of which are the sixty thousand American war dead buried in France.

"It is over a century ago," Briand's message read, "that LaFayette and his companions were fighting for the cause of American independence and you are not keeping up their memory by associating in a single ceremony their names and that of the victory of the Marne which was for France the signal of a supreme effort and the liberation of their territory.

"Still longer will the French people remember that your soldiers fought side by side with their own. It is this feeling of deep gratitude towards the United States of America which the whole of France will be happy to express in a few days to the members of the American Legion."

After recalling the joint efforts of American and French soldiers at the battle of the Marne in 1914, Ambassador Claudel said he was happy to "commemorate, among these fine young men who will be your future officers, together with the birth of LaFayette the birth of a thing that will not die.

"I mean the friendship of France and America," he continued. "The spirit which brought LaFayette to America was the same spirit which brought Pershing to France, it was the same winged spirit which this year brought your American eagles above the ocean and which today brings back your legionnaires to the fields where they have fought and won."

Interesting Fossil Area

The Joggins section of Nova Scotia has been recognized since the days of the great geologists, Logan and Lyell, as affording the finest example in the world of fossil coal measure forests. The section is now represented in Canada's national museum at Ottawa by a series of upright trunks with a background of a carboniferous landscape and a panoramic view of the Joggins section. The stumps with their great expanse of roots form what is considered by many familiar with foreign museums to be the finest exhibit of its kind in any museum.

Love's Fatal Lure

LOVE never flowered into a more beautiful romance than that which culminated in the marriage of Beatrice and Joe. It seemed that ahead of them lay only happiness.

The fact that Joe's salary was small—that he was still studying for a bigger job—seemed not to matter—at first. But as time passed, with the financial goal still far ahead, Beatrice's mind often clouded with worry and doubt. Her girl friends, more fortunately married, had pretty clothes, smart cars, lovely homes, which they were forever flaunting before her envious eyes.

For a long time Beatrice nursed her growing discontent in stony silence. But the seed of revolt had started its deadly growth, and Beatrice secretly determined to "taste the joys of life," regardless of consequences.

Little did she dream of the terrible lengths to which her desperate folly was to lead her. So she went desperately, blindly ahead, soon to be caught in a seething maelstrom of disaster, anguish and terror that was to forever destroy her hopes for future happiness.

Don't miss the story of this wife's tragic, soul-stirring experience. It is entitled "Under Cover of Matrimony," and appears complete in True Story for October.

"The door crashed inward. Betsy was struggling in Paul's arms. Myrtle leaped forward, revolver raised. In the scuffle which followed, a shot rang out." (From "Under Cover of Matrimony," October True Story Magazine.)

Stories More Amazing Because True

"The most interesting thing about life," said a great psychologist, "is its astonishing unexpectedness." This is especially true when applied to the dramatic happenings in the lives of human beings. Some startling event transpires in the life of a friend, or a well-known public personality. And we wonder at the hidden motives, the untold hate, love, sacrifice, temptation, human error or folly that brought it about.

In True Story Magazine every month the mysterious forces that make men and women do the things they do, are fully and frankly revealed. If you want to peer into the souls of those who have really lived—if you want to learn the truth about life—its struggles, defeats, triumphs and tragedies, buy True Story every month. Your newsdealer has the October issue, which contains seventeen gripping features. Get your copy today.

(Above)—"YOU'VE DISGRACED US ALL," she said. With her future assured by her coming marriage to a man old enough to be her father, Jacqueline's parents thought she ought to be happy. Markers For Historic Spots

Where They Will Be Placed When They Arrive—Route of the Pilgrimage on Saturday to Historic Places in Hurley and Kingston.

At a meeting of the executive committee for Kingston's Sesqui-centennial celebration which was held at the court house on Tuesday Captain Everett Fowler submitted a report showing where the historical markers will be placed and also giving the route of the historical pilgrimage which will be held in the morning.

Captain Fowler's report was as follows:

First: We have ordered twelve markers for Kingston, two for Hurley and one for Stone Ridge as follows:

One for each of the four corners of the old stockade. One for the Block house which stood on the southwest corner of Fair and Main streets. One for the site of the First Old Dutch Church. One for the site of the Bogardus Tavern where the first Assembly met which stood where Myron Teller's house now stands. One for the Elmendorf Tavern where the Committee of Safety met at the corner of Maiden Lane and Fair street. One for the site of the Christopher Tappen House (where Governor Clinton stayed while in Kingston when Governor) corner of Wall and North Front streets. One for the DeVall Tavern where all the public dances and receptions were held on the south side of North Front street between Crown and Green streets. One for the entrance to the old Kings highway, corner of Converse and North Front streets and one for the old Kingston Academy, corner of John and Crown streets. None were ordered for the Court House, Senate House or the Van Steenburgh house now owned by Judge Fowler for the reason that they are already appropriately marked. In Hurley, two are to be placed, one on the spot where George Washington addressed the residents of that village on November 16, 1782, and one in front of the Van Deusen house where the Committee of Safety met. At Stone Ridge, one is to be placed in front of the Wynkoop House where Washington stayed over night, November 15, 1782.

These markers have not as yet arrived but are expected every day, and as soon as they are received will be immediately placed.

Second: As to the Historical Pilgrimage—the pilgrimage will start promptly at 9:30 o'clock from the Stuyvesant Hotel. The route taken for this trip will be through John to Wall to Main to Clinton avenue to North Front, then to Hurley, coming back from Hurley through North Front to Crown to John to Green to St. James to Wall to Franklin to Fair to Main to the First Reformed Dutch Church yard where the ceremonies at the grave of Governor Clinton will take place at 10:30 a. m. Your committee would request that the transportation committee provide at least fifteen automobiles to be on Fair street in front of the Stuyvesant Hotel not later than 9:15 Saturday morning to provide accommodations for this trip, and that each car have a printed card to be placed on the windshield of each reading "official car." We would also urgently suggest that no parking of cars be permitted on either side of Fair street between John and North Front, and on John street between Fair and Wall between the hours of 9 a. m. and 2:30 p. m., on that day except official cars, and that no parking of cars be permitted on Main street between Fair and Wall between 9 a. m. and 11 a. m., except as above mentioned. Your committee would like to have the authority to have about one hundred cards printed showing the historical points passed in the Pilgrimage for those who take part in this trip.

Third: The ceremonies at the grave of Governor Clinton will take place at 10:30. They will be extremely simple, consisting of a prayer, a short address by Mr. Flick, the State Historian, and the laying of the wreath on the grave of Governor Clinton by Governor Smith. We have selected three airs to be played, America, the Battle Hymn of the Republic and the Star Spangled Banner. We would like to have the band there about ten o'clock to play some patriotic pieces before the ceremonies take place to attract the crowd. It is our intention to have a large laurel wreath tied with a red, white and blue ribbon, and would like authority to purchase it. We would like also to have the committee who has charge of erecting platforms to erect a small one about six feet square and two feet high at the front of the grave so that the speaker will be elevated above the heads of the crowd. We do not believe this ceremony will last half an hour.

BROKEN LEG WAS MADE OF WOOD.

Superior, Wis., Sept. 7 (AP).—Peter Fronski's leg was broken last night, and he got quite a kick out of it.

After an automobile had passed over his leg Fronski was taken in an ambulance to a hospital. Attendants could not understand why he grinned throughout the trip. Doctors did, however, when they found the broken leg was made of wood. Franski was uninjured.

Scour Woods for Stabber.

Middleboro, Mass., Sept. 7 (AP).—State and local police are scouring the woods near this town for Charles Giovenetti, an ex-convict, who has been named by 14 year old Eleanor Beals, and her grandmother, Mrs. Carrie Pasquerelle, as the man who stabbed them in the yard of their home as the child left for school this mornifg. Eleanor is expected to die.

Soft Fabrics Are Offered for Fall

Described as Woolen Velvets; Shimmering Designs Also Win Attention.

First in importance among the showings of woolen materials, writes a Paris correspondent in the New York Times, are the soft velvety fabrics, "the woolen velvets," as Rodier describes them. He names his varied line of these weaves "vellinas," with qualifying adjectives such as kashavelline, a heavy, velvety kasha in soft colors, diagonavelline, a diagonal scratched weave, and velladrap, a very thin but scratched weave, to distinguish each variation from the parent weave. As he makes them, these woolen velvets are reminiscent of the familiar velours, soft all through, that is, and almost as fuzzy on the wrong side as on the right.

Woolen velvets are also being shown by Lesur, but his are woven like suede cloth, a downy surface on a harder backing, and are classified under the general name of tissus peau. These include the aristocratic gazella, a suede finish on a silk back, as luxurious and promising to be as durable as any velvet; cynelaine, woven on a cashmere back and strongly resembling velours again, and laponia, with a sateen back, a soft and lovely material on the suede order that is bound to appeal to every woman. Broadcloth, zibelline and cheviot are other old favorites to be revived in this new vogue for mid-Victorian materials. According to this manufacturer, who also makes silks, the woolen weaves are to have their day in the sun now, supplanting the beloved crepes de chine, the crepe satins and other soft, serviceable silks with which every woman's wardrobe is filled at present. It may prove to be so. Certainly, a survey of the featherweight woolens worn during the summer, the wool voiles, the kashas, the jerseys, and even that old favorite, etamine, which is revived now under the name "wool georgette," gives pause for thought, the only reassurance lying in the fact that woolen frocks and steam-heated apartments are rather incompatible.

All this mention of woolen velvets is apt to obscure the fact that the silk velvets, supreme in fashion's favor last winter, seem doomed to obscurity for a while.

The Filipino pina cloth has its ethereal counterpart in a new Paris material, a cobwebby mousseline made of sheer black cotton threads alternating with silver ones, over which is thrown an evanescent pattern of blurred roses. Another new creation is called tinsel glace, and gains a moonlight-on-snow effect in the way the tinsel threads are woven over and under a heavy corded warp like that used in Ottoman silks. This comes in pastel shades only.

The few velvets shown for evening are cut velvets woven on a lame base so that even they may have the proper glitter. A most successful design had a background of two-inch stripes, first of dark gray, then light gray, then soft pink, each color being woven with an overshimmer of silver threads and over this a very open geometrical design of dove-gray cut velvet.

Weaves of tinsels on silks for afternoon differ from those for evening only by being in darker shades and in designs super-imposed one upon another.

Scotch Plaid Is Again in Autumn Limelight

The Scotch plaid wins again in the smart girl's fall wardrobe. Yola D'Avril, featured motion picture player, wears a black and white plaid coat that promises to be popular this winter. It has a large black fox collar. A small felt hat completes the outfit.

Farm Hand Was Heavily Armed

Dono Joseph Kaishiigo, aged 35 years, a Portuguese farm hand employed by Louis Glaser near Accord in the town of Rochester, was brought to the Ulster county jail Tuesday afternoon and will be held on a nominal charge of disorderly conduct pending an investigation as to his mental condition. The man had been acting strangely for a few days, firing off a gun on the highway during the night. Residents afraid that he might cause damage, complained to the authorities and he was taken into custody and brought to jail by Deputy Sheriff Rosa and State Troopers Seymour and Wright, being picked up on the highway near Kerhonkson. The Portuguese had with him a rifle, a .38 calibre revolver, 500 rounds of cartridges for the rifle, 20 rounds for the revolver and about $300 in money. He made no objection to being arrested and was calm when brought to the court house. He made explanation of how he secured the money, which he said he had been saving in order to return to Portugal.

Ad Wolgast Going to Asylum.

Los Angeles, Sept. 7 (AP).—Only shadows of long past glories lurked today in the mind of Ad Wolgast, one-time lightweight boxing champion, as arrangements for his confinement in an insane asylum were being completed.

GOSPEL CRUSADERS' PRAYER SERVICE LARGELY ATTENDED

The regular union prayer service of the Ulster County Gospel Crusaders was held Tuesday night at the Young Women's Christian Association. The leaders were pleased with the attendance and wish to thank the publishers for the announcement that appeared in The Freeman on Monday evening. The article brought in people from Chicago, Ill.; Boston, Mass.; Utica, N. Y.; Bridgeport, Conn., and Stamford, Conn.; as well as many from Bloomington and surrounding country where The Freeman subscribers were entertaining.

The Rev. G. E. Kerr presented a picture of Josephas, found in the 39th Chapter of Genesis, in such a way as to impress the hearers so that no one left without feeling impressed and thankful for the talk given by Mr. Kerr.

A summary of the August meetings was compiled and the total attendance for the month was nearly 460. This was gratifying to the leaders as the weather was somewhat against the meetings and many of the followers of the Crusade were vacationing.

The next meeting will be held Sunday at 3 p. m. at the Y. M. C. A.

Search For Incendiary.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Sept. 7 (AP).—Dutchess county officials are seeking an incendiary believed responsible for the fire which early today destroyed the new hall of Oak Grove Grange near Wappingers Falls with a loss of $12,000.

AUTO AND ALE SEIZED; TWO ARRESTED

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 7 (AP).—An automobile and 33 quarts of ale were seized and two men were arrested by provincial police on the upriver shore near Chippewa today. Part of the ale was in the automobile and the rest on the ground. Two small boats that were off shore pulled away when the police made the seizure.

The men arrested described themselves as Jack Nedo, Niagara Falls, N. Y., and Anthony George, Elmira. They disclaimed ownership of the ale. Police believe they interrupted loading of the ale for transport to the American side of the river.

KINGSTON, N. Y., SEPT. 7, 1927.

A grandmother won the prize for "the best pair of ankles" among the summer visitors at Penobscot Bay, Maine, and in consequence commenting editors have changed an old plaintive query into "Where Is My Wandering Grandma Tonight?"

In connection with the proposition of Hoover's nomination by the Republicans it is announced that he worked his way through Leland Stanford as a gatherer-in for the University laundry. This is hardly as romantic a recommendation as early rail-splitting, but it may be counted on to serve the purpose.

CIVIL RULE ALREADY.

There is a widespread impression that the Philippines are under military rule, in this country as well as in the islands themselves. In recent years the Filipinos have had at least some reason to think so, but there is less excuse for the many American newspapers which have referred to the "military rule" of the Philippines as a fact. Not a few, in discussing General Wood's successor said that an expert civil rather a military administration is now desirable, and that in his next message the President may recommend "a change from military to civil control". And yet for years the Islands have had civil government, with an insular legislature and a supreme court, both functioning independently of the Governor-General appointed from Washington.

The misconception has resulted partly from the appointment of Leonard Wood, a major-general of the United States army, as Governor General, and partly from his methods and resulting deadlock between his authority and that of the native legislature. General Wood further conveyed the impression of military government by associating with himself a number of United States army officers in subordinate positions. These military aides and Wood's methods in general gave the appearance of a military government which had no existence in fact. Obviously what is now needed is, not "a change from military to civil control," but a change from a soldier to a civilian as Governor-General.

AMERICAN HUGENESS.

The King of Sweden's invitation to Mayor Walker to visit him before returning to America has brought attention to the fact that this single American mayor "rules" more people than the monarch named, the estimated population of New York city in 1923 being exactly 21,422 greater than that of all Sweden in the same year—both having something over six million inhabitants. But ethnologically the difference is very great. Sweden has a homogeneous population, virtually all native born, of one religion and one language, while in New York, as the Times puts it, "every race under heaven is represented, every tongue is spoken, every creed is professed and every social tradition cherished," the native white population in 1920 being only 61.7 per cent of the total and "not more than 15 or 20 per cent" having both parents born in America.

All will agree with the Times that such an admixture of races and creeds makes, or would naturally be expected to make, Mayor Walker's job more perplexing than that of King Gustav IV. The Times fails to take into consideration, however, that the greater opportunity and prosperity in America compared with Europe make for greater contentment among the people. The changes brought by the centuries, as well as the hugeness of America and its mighty development, are suggested by the Times's interesting statement that there are now more people in New York city alone "than spoke the English language, and several millions more than could read or write it, in Shakespeare's day."

FEDERAL REVENUE.

One of the arguments against the federal income tax before its adoption was that it would not pay because it would be widely and successfully dodged. Whether there has been much successful "dodging" or successful fraudulent returning or not, it has been clearly demonstrated that it does pay the Federal government to collect the income tax. The recent report of the commissioner of internal revenue shows that the income tax collections for the fiscal year ending June 30 were in excess of $2,200,000,000. It appears that the income tax supplied about 77 per cent of the amount collected by the bureau, as compared with 76 per cent in the preceding fiscal year. The internal revenue collections are now nearly three billions, forming the greater part of the Federal government's total receipts of about $4,129,000,000.

As compared with the internal revenue collections the customs revenue is small, amounting to only about six hundred millions, or only about one-seventh of the entire Federal revenue and less than one-third of the income tax collections. This is a notable change since President Cleveland's time, when the customs revenue was, and was expected to continue to be, the principal source of the Federal government's income. Even as late as 1910 the customs returns were nearly 50 per cent of the total receipts and until 1911 were more than the internal revenue receipts. Since 1910 the Federal government's receipts have increased more than six times, while the tariff revenue has not even doubled. Obviously the chief explanation of this is that the continuing revision of the tariff upward has checked the importation of foreign goods.

ASTHMA NOW CURABLE.

It is certainly refreshing to see the way our physicians now tackle the problem of asthma.

In former times, asthma was simply taken for granted. Perhaps the patient received some relief by moving to a different climate, but usually the only thought was treatment during the attack itself. Nowadays, however, the physician makes a thorough investigation as to the cause of the asthma, and by persistent searching he is able, in the majority of cases, to locate the cause.

He finds that in some cases the attacks are worse during certain seasons of the year.

For instance, as shown by Dr. G. T. Brown of Washington, cases seen in the early Spring may be due to the pollen from trees, those in the late Spring and Summer to the various grasses, and those in the Fall to the ragweeds.

Then there is the skin test, whereby the patient is tested out with various kinds of proteid substances.

Another test, the food test, is investigated, by finding out whether the patient has ever eaten anything, at any time in his life, that seemed to aggravate the asthma, or disagree in any way. That is by causing swelling of tongue, nausea, sores on mouth, vomiting, pain in stomach, and so forth. Eggs, milk, and wheat flour, although good foods, may sometimes cause the trouble.

Then there is asthma caused by contact with animals, the dandruff from fur and feathers, from pet dogs, horses and fowls.

And finally the use of orris root in face and tooth powders, and dry shampoos, may be the exciting cause of the asthmatic attacks.

Even the house "dust" may be the kind that causes the irritation, and patients have gone from their homes to another in the same city for a short stay, and the asthmatic attacks have disappeared. Nose and throat troubles are also the cause of many cases.

What does all this mean?

That sufferers from this miserable condition must not sit down and accept asthma as something that has to be endured, but should go to their family doctor and have him investigate the case fully from the above standpoints.

Persistent effort is almost sure to locate the cause, and the proper treatment.

BEHIND THE TIMES

In this great age of progress everything that does not move along with the trend of the times is lost, including towns. Business firms that do not utilize modern time-saving devices and speed up production go down to oblivion in the great crush of today's competition.

How, then, can anyone afford to dwell in the past? Yet some communities do, unconsciously perhaps. They let things slide in a haphazard fashion. They have gradually taken on all the modern public conveniences such as electricity, good roads and sewage disposal systems, but they have ignored that very essential thing that any town must have in these times if it wishes to get anywhere, namely a spirit of progressiveness.

The city that lacks this spirit is living in the past and it cannot expect much in the future. It is trave ling by stage coach, while its competitor is in the airplane class. It is out of the race completely. Kingston is not in the stage coach class, but we want to make sure it keeps abreast of the times and that the spirit of progressiveness never lags here.

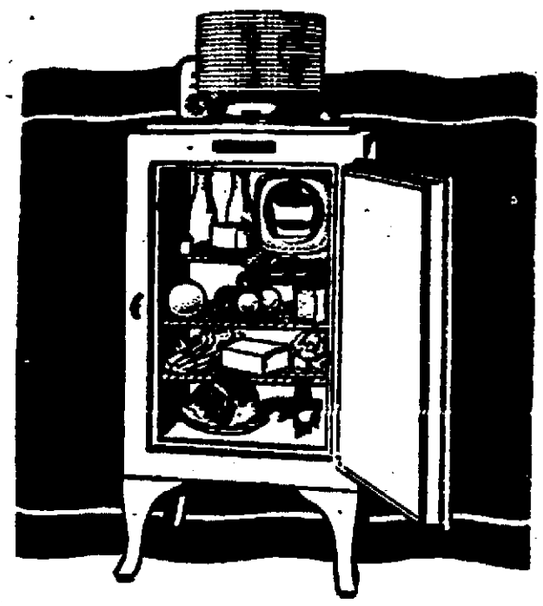
GENERAL ELECTRIC
Refrigerator



Install it .... and forget it

You will forget the new General Electric Refrigerator —except to bless the way it lightens household tasks. It makes two trips to market take the place of six. It keeps all foods at just the right temperature. It makes the preparation of those delightful salads and desserts a matter of minutes instead of hours. It never needs attention—not even oiling.

Come in and see it. You will notice that it is unusually quiet. That it has no pipes, belts, drains or fans to get out of order. That its shelves are unusually roomy. That it is portable. That all its moving parts are enclosed in a single hermetically sealed casing. All these advantages are the result of fifteen years of painstaking research by the General Electric Company.

GIUSEPPE'S TRIP ENDS FAR SHORT OF SUNNY ITALY

Noted Dishwasher and Traveler Sails Almost to Great Fame.

New York.—Giuseppe Caruso, noted dishwasher and traveler of Albany, sailed on his first attempt to sail from Albany to Italy on a Hudson river steamboat.

Mr. Caruso began the trip, which would have been epoch making if it hadn't ended at Forty-second street, without any advance publicity, and his daring and optimistic venture became known only when failure stared him in the face.

A watchman at the pier at Forty-second street and North river, where the Hudson river boats dock, turned the protesting Mr. Caruso over to a policeman from the West Thirtieth street station. Mr. Caruso protested against leaving the pier.

"I wait for the boat for Naples," he explained. "I buy my ticket and my passport."

Interpreter Called.

He produced a document written in flowing Italian script and explained this was the "passport." But then when he was assured the Naples boat did not sail from that pier he broke into a rash of Italian, so the policeman took him to the station house and sent for an interpreter.

Through the interpreter Mr. Caruso explained he had been in this country eight years and had spent most of his time in Albany washing innumerable dishes. But always as he washed he remembered his beloved Italy. His heart yearned for Naples, and he saved his salary assiduously against the day of his return.

"I save much money," he explained in Italian, pulling out of his pocket a greasy roll of bills, which when counted proved to be more than $2,000.

When he confided in his Albany friends his intention of returning to Italy they proved very helpful. They sold him his passport and a round-trip tricket from Albany to Naples, charging him $30 for the passport and $50 for the ticket.

Then they took him down to the boat, presented a regulation ticket for him and stood on the pier weeping as he steamed down the Hudson.

Didn't Reach Naples.

The boat didn't quite reach Naples. It stopped at the Forty-second street pier and Mr. Caruso was put off. He asked a man when the Naples boat would be along and this chance acquaintance collected $5 in return for a promise to find out. He and the $5 disappeared and the Naples boat never did appear.

After a lengthy conference with police Mr. Caruso was escorted to Grand Central station and put on an Albany train. His friends are not expected to meet him at the station.

Make Neighbors Leave Me Alone, Wails Man

Milwaukee.—Gustave Kabitzke likes privacy and so, to be separated from his neighbors, Kabitzke built a fence on the boundary line of his property. But several of Kabitzke's neighbors took offense at the partition.

On the same day Kabitzke built the fence, A. E. Stigibauer and his wife tore it down. Kabitzke reprimanded them, but to no avail, he says. The next day Kabitzke started work on a garage. But hardly were the walls completed when another neighbor, E. Holebas and his wife, in alleged conspiracy with the Stigibauers, knocked down the bricks, Kabitzke complains.

All this has been most annoying to Kabitzke and he asked an injunction in Circuit court to deter the Stigibauers and Holebases from continuing their alleged house-wrecking activities.

Scolding Penalized

Moscow.—Russian telephone operators are protected by law against being scolded. If a telephone user loses his temper and says what he feels into the transmitter, the offended operator merely reports his number and his telephone is promptly disconnected for a time. The Soviet "hello girls" give few wrong numbers, however.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

NIGHTINGALE'S FRIEND

"I heard a story the other day," said Daddy, "a quite true story.

"Mr. Nightingale had built too large a nest.

"After a while he thought of a visitor he would like to have all the time, and off he started on his travels.

"As he went along, flying as fast as he could, he kept thinking to himself how very lonely he had been of late.

"At last he reached the spot he had chosen for resting. It was in a blackbird's bay.

"There were many low bushes and shrubs and berry trees in this bay, and in the marshy water were quantities of pond lilies.

"Soon a very fine bird—black as black could be, and very shiny, just as if he'd polished his wings with shoe-blackening—perched on a bush beside the one where Mr. Nightingale was resting.

"'Did you come to hear us sing or talk or scream?' asked the blackbird.

"Mr. Nightingale sang a little opening song and then began to talk to the blackbird.

"'Mr. Blackbird,' he said, 'you're a handsome fellow, and you're very smart.

"'I've heard a secret about your family. Many have done what you will do.

"'You must try. That's all.' And again Mr. Nightingale sang a song.

"'What do you mean, Mr. Nightin-

"What Do You Mean, Mr. Nightingale?"

gale? Your song is lovely, but your talk is very, very queer.'

"And Mr. Blackbird shook his head sadly.

"'Well, I mean you to come to my nest. It's too big for me.

"'It's fitted out perfectly—all the latest improvements—fresh water to drink supplied by my water man, Mr. Showers, and new worms each day my children bring to my nest in plenty of time for breakfast—and our rooms are both shady and sunny.

"'In fact, it's a very superior home.

"'But in the house nearby lives a dear old lady, and I want to give her a treat.

"'She has gone away on a visit and when she comes back I want you to be singing duets with me.'

"'What?' shouted the blackbird. 'I'm to sing with you?'

"'Most certainly. Many blackbirds have copied our voices so that you wouldn't be able to tell us apart if you couldn't see us.

"'The nice old lady will hear our voices and think that there are two of me!

"'When she sees that one is you, she'll think you're a very bright bird—that's what she'll think.

"'Besides, I want a companion and I like you.'

"'I never heard so many reasons in all my life,' laughed the blackbird.

"'But I'll go just as soon as I get my suitcase packed.

"'There are several little delicacies from the bay I'd like to bring along.

"And Mr. Blackbird stopped to put some red berries and other goodies in his straw bag.

"Then off they went, and Mr. Blackbird did learn to sing just like Mr. Nightingale, and when the lady came back she was delighted, surprised and amazed."

Owen's Clever Ruse

Owen's Uncle Jim had an automobile which was a novelty to the little boy. He wanted to ride in it all the time, so that his mother had to warn him that he must never ask Uncle Jim to take him for a ride. One day Uncle Jim was in the garage working on the car, and Owen went out to watch him. He climbed into the back seat, and pointed to the flowers in the flower holders.

"What is these flowers, Uncle Jim?" he asked.

"Roses, Owen,"

Owen thought for a while and then suggested, "I thinks those roses says they want a ride, Uncle Jim."

Tooth Was Hatching

Maribelle went with her father on a trip into the country. While at a farm house she was intensely interested in the baby chicks in the incubator.

A few days later she was pushing the baby carriage in front of her home when an elderly woman met her. The woman admired the baby and asked how old it was.

Said Maribelle, "I don' know 'sactly, but his first toof is beginnin' to hatch."

"What is my present car worth in trade?"

"GIVEN several makes of cars selling at about the same price, why should one offer me a larger allowance on my present car than another?"

This is a commonly asked question. Its answer lies in understanding these basic facts:

1. Your present car has only one fundamental basis of value: i. e., what the dealer who accepts it in trade can get for it in the used car market.

2. Your present car has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car.

3. The largest allowance offered is not necessarily the best deal for you. Sometimes it is not. It may mean that the new car involved has been excessively priced so as to permit an excessive allowance.

4. In trading-in your present car for a new car, first judge the merits of the new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges. Then weigh any difference in allowance.

Marie Antoinette's eventful life in rance began at Strasbourg, or rather pon a small island in the Rhine in ront of the Alsatian capital. There, n a pavilion decorated with Gobe- in tapestries, she paused on her way o become the wife of the dauphin, af- erward Louis XVI. She entered by a oor on the east side. After a com- lete change of clothing, symbolic of her renunciation of all connections ith her native country, Austria, she emerged on the west or French side. Her Austrian escort remained behind, replaced by a guard sent by Louis XV. The chief magistrate of Stras- bourg addressed her in German.

"Don't speak German," she said, though she had just learned the new ongue she was henceforth to speak. "From today I understand only French."—Kansas City Star.

DAILY RADIO PROGRAM

Thursday, September 8.

Memories of the trenches, of the training camps and of anxious days at home, as well as the rejoicing which greeted the armistice, will be recalled to radio listeners when "Our Musical United States" is radiated by WJZ and the Blue Network. This program which is in commemoration of the visit of the second A. E. F. to France this summer, will be composed entirely of songs popular during the World War. Selecting the most beautiful girl in evening gown will be the colonial task of the judges of the Atlantic City Beauty Pageant, the events of which will be broadcast by WFBL. "Yeomen of the Guard," a comic opera in two acts by Gilbert and Sullivan will be presented before the microphones of WEAF and the Red Network. A musical program under the auspices of the Eastern Carolina Chamber of Commerce, featuring an orchestra, soloists and a prominent speaker will be WRVA's big highlight, and the Elks Double Quartet will tempt the lovers of choral music to tune to WSYC. Through the afternoon and well into the wee sma' hours, KHJ will radiate the events of the Los Angeles Radio Show.

A few DOLLARS now- will save a few TONS next winter

The men listed below can save you many dollars this winter. Have the one nearest you inspect your heating plant now. If you used too much coal last season, he can probably adjust your boiler at very small cost. Even if the heating system seemed to be in fair condition, he might discover some defective part that wasted a portion of every shovelful of coal. A minor adjustment may stop this drain. A few dollars for repairs now will save a lot of worry, inconvenience and coal next winter.

By going to one of these dealers you are assured of a square deal. They are heating experts—not salesmen. They are your neighbors, know your problems, and are anxious to keep your patronage. Look for your dealer in the list below and write or phone him today!

After a thorough examination your dealer might decide that the best economy lies in a new boiler. In installing a Richardson & Boynton boiler, he assures you of the utmost comfort and economy. It will be just large enough to heat every part of the house with a minimum of coal—and it will be guaranteed to live up to its rated capacity by the Richardson & Boynton Co. Convenient payments can be arranged if desired.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press.)

Rapid City—Her faint at a tea of the Pernicketty Club is explained by Mrs. M. W. Sneesbarn as due to the prospect of meeting the wife of a president. It was especially unfortunate because Mrs. Coolidge had new clothes from the east, never worn before—a tan, flowered gown, brown straw hat, jade earrings and a jade green coat.

New York—Forty-five years ago Charles G. Black, then 14 years old, got a job from the Standard Oil Company putting wire handles on cans. Now he is president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, a recently formed $200,000,000 operating subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company (New Jersey).

Philadelphia—Having toured Italy, France, Sweden, Norway, Germany, Switzerland, Denmark and England, Cardinal Dougherty is glad to be back home. "No country we have seen can compare with our own," he said.

New York—Word comes via W. R. Sheehan, film executive, that women smoke at the movies throughout Europe; that they demanded and were granted the privilege of puffing while looking, also that Mussolini has made talking movies, two of half an hour each.

Nunda, N. Y.—Fires are to be set by girls at the firemen's field day and the firemen won't put them out. There's to be a cigarette smoking contest for women.

New York—The price of stock exchange seats is going up with stocks. With the composite average of 1000 representative issues at the highest in history Carroll S. Bayne closed a deal for a seat at a cost of $236,000, a new record by $4,000.

Montreal—The Prince of Wales is a disciple of the strenuous life. A few of his activities on the last full day of his visit to the Dominion were visits to two warships, a game of squash racquets, a round of golf, a formal dinner.

New York—Mrs. Willebrandt is visiting rum's "last citadel". She says prohibition can be enforced "when we shut up and keep quiet. It can be enforced throughout the country, but New York will be the last citadel to fall."

NOTES AND RECENT NEWS IN THE WORLD ON WHEELS.

That the Studebaker Commander has again lived up to its name was demonstrated recently when it ran away with the hill-climbing laurels against a field of six or more competitive cars at Arrowwood, Alberta, Canada. The Arrowwood test was made on "Little Axe" Hill which has long been looked upon as "impossible". Although automobiles have been driven over it, low gear has been used for the most part in traversing its quarter mile of rough, steep grade. The Studebaker Commander, starting in high from a standstill, went to the top of the hill in 40 1-5 seconds and thereby beat the time of two competitive cars—one of them a roadster—which made the hilltop in 60 1-5 seconds and 65.5 seconds, respectively.

A series of nation-wide holidays topped off with banquets, the tribute of a great company to its leading retail salesmen, is now being staged by the Chevrolet Motor Company in honor of 2,790 retail salesmen who during the selling year ended August 1 achieved membership in the company's "72 Car Club", a star salesman's honorary organization. This year's roll exceeds by more than three times the list for 1926, when only 873 salesmen qualified for membership, and furnishes a new index of the tremendous production and sales record established by this company during the year.

Sale of Paige cars reached a new high mark for 1927 in August, according to announcement just made from the factory. Three thousand and fifty-nine cars were shipped during the month, bettering April, the best previous month of the current year, by more than two hundred cars. The figure of 3,059 shipped this August also compared most favorably with August, 1926, when 1,095 cars left the Paige plant.

"In creating the new Chandler Sportster on the Special Six chassis," states Mr. Longendyke, local Chandler distributor, "Chandler presents an open model to the motor car buying public which is a strict departure from any thing in the low priced open car field. This car with the double bowl and windshield, low hung body and trim lines is an entirely new addition to the Chandler line. The Sportster is the only open car on the market today at a low price which provides the sportive atmosphere and novel touches which this model possesses."

August was the biggest single month in the history of the Nash Motors Company. All previous records since the establishment of the company were swept aside during the month just ended and when the books were closed they revealed shipments of 18,027 cars while orders for August delivery totaled 20,201.

A Studebaker Commander Sedan, driven by Ab Jenkins, has established a new ocean-to-ocean road record by travelling from coast to coast in 77 hours and 40 minutes, total elapsed time. In making his record, Jenkins cut two hours and 15 minutes from the best previous time from tide water to tide water, made an open car driven by L. B. Miller.

More than 100,000 Pontiac Six cars have been produced and sold so far this year by the Oakland Motor Car Company—approximately 24,000 more than were sold during the entire year of 1926 when this car was introduced and broke all previous sales records for any make of car during the first year of production. In fact the entire production of the previous years—slightly more than 76,000 Pontiac Sixes—had been exceeded at the end of the first half of this year, when a production of 78,138 Pontiac cars had been reached.

Prices of the nine standard models in the Hupmobile Eight line are now $150 lower than heretofore, following announcement by the Hupp Motor Car Corporation. In announcing these new prices, the company also points out that the number of color combinations for the various models has been increased, affording the buyer a wider selection of colors from which to make his selection of each model.

A new low price for Chevrolet's latest and most beautiful model, the Imperial Landau, which now lists at only $745 f. o. b. Flint, Mich., was announced. This reduction was made possible by volume production growing out of the tremendous demand on the part of the public everywhere.

The new Peerless 1928 models announced now on display mark a striking advance in body design and luxurious closed car interiors. While possessing all the roominess for which Peerless bodies have always been known, the new models are much lower, in some instances as much as an inch and a half. Upholstering material of unusual richness, heavy deep carpets, new instruments boards, new head lamps on some models, new duo-tone lacquer color combinations with a variety for each of the separate Peerless lines, new two-tone ribbing design bumpers, these are among the things which immediately catch the eye.

Heaters for the Ocean

Artificial heating of the ocean is to be tried out at Westerland, Germany, a popular seaside resort, in order to provide all-the-year-round bathing. Huge electric heaters will be installed to raise the water's temperature and rob a winter dip of its chill. Heated bathing cabins and covered ways leading to the water, says Popular Science Monthly, will be provided for the bathers' comfort.

LAST NIGHT on the RADIO

Reception Tuesday night came pretty near up to the radio fan's notion of what Heaven ought to be. Even the buzzers were silent and if there was any static it was of the kind that improves reception. WLS was coming in strong before 9 o'clock, and 9 o'clock fool time is only 8 o'clock sun time. Western and southern stations were especially strong. WGN performed as it has not in two years, the Red Apple Club held high jinks at WCX, the coffee program was good, WBAL continued right on the mark and without spreading, WPG spread as usual and two new stations were added to Ye Listener's list, making the total now 303. The new stations were WBET at Boston and KWKH at Shreveport, Louisiana. KWKH was not a whisperer either, but came with such strength that it put out whatever member of the WHN family was on the air. Of course with the south strong there was no difficulty in hearing WJAX, WSM, WRC and WSB and at an hour much earlier than usual.

What has happened to WMAF? It is now heard about two points above WOR, where it comes perilously near to interfering with WLW. It has been coming in about five points above WOR and where it interfered with nothing but NAA. The change is not an improvement.

WSAI was very strong and had a wonderfully uplifting and inspiring new song, "I'm Goin' to Dance With the Guy That Brought Me," which teachs a great moral principle as well as emphasizes a basic rule of "sassiety."

CITY ORDINANCE.

An ordinance for establishing the center line grade of Murray Street, from the Easterly curb line of Chambers Street to the Westerly curb line of Hasbrouck Avenue.

Passed, August 30, 1927.

The Board of Public Works of the City of Kingston, do ordain as follows:

Resolved, that the grade of Murray Street from the Easterly curb line of Chambers Street to the westerly curb line of Hasbrouck Avenue is hereby fixed and established as follows:

Beginning at the intersection of the easterly curb line of Chambers Street and the center of Murray Street at an elevation of 46.1 feet above the City Datum and thence falling at the rate of 2.194 per cent per one hundred (100) feet for a distance of 93.5 feet to an elevation of 44.0 feet. Thence rising at the rate of 2.574 per cent per one hundred (100) feet for a distance of 81.3 feet to an elevation of 46.6 feet. Thence still rising at the rate of 7.103 per cent per one hundred (100) feet for a distance of 153.3 feet to an elevation of 57.5 feet. Thence still rising at the rate of 6.75 per cent per one hundred (100) feet for a distance of 150.6 feet to an elevation of 68.6 feet. Thence still rising at the rate of 3.409 per cent per one hundred (100) feet for a distance of 17.6 feet to an elevation of 68.27 feet being the Westerly curb line of Hasbrouck Avenue.

Resolved, that the above mentioned portion of Murray Street be curbed, guttered and flagged in accordance with the grade of said street as hereby established.

Resolved, that the sidewalks on both sides of the above mentioned portion of Murray Street be curbed, guttered and flagged in the manner following: The curb stone shall not be less than twenty inches in depth nor less than four inches in thickness. The gutter stones shall be fourteen inches in width and at least three inches thick. The curbstones shall be set to the established elevation and the grade of the street and cut to curves of the proper radius at intersecting streets of one foot from the curb line toward the center of the street, and so that the surface of the gutter stone shall be nine inches below the top of the curb, or less if so desired.

The sidewalks shall be flagged with sound smooth flagging stone, five feet in width and not less than three inches in thickness and shall be laid with a rising inclination of one quarter of an inch per foot from the curb line to the street line. All curbing, guttering and flagging shall be embedded in sand or equally good material free from clay, such curbing, guttering and flagging shall be made and completed within thirty days after due service of notice upon the owner or occupant so to do, and if the work be not done and completed within the time above specified the expense of resetting missing grade stakes shall be paid by said owner or occupant and the Board of Public Works may have the curbing, guttering and flagging done at the expense of the delinquent owners or occupants. Provided, however, that if any property owner so elects, concrete sidewalks, and curb and gutter, of approved construction satisfactory to the City Engineer and of the designated widths and depths as herein prescribed may be used in place and instead of blue stone.

This ordinance shall be published once in the official papers of the City and a copy of said ordinance shall be served upon each of said owners or occupants, this section being intended to be such notice.

Resolved, that all ordinances or parts of ordinances inconsistent with the provisions of this ordinance are hereby repealed.

STORK SCARES CIRCUS BEASTS

Heroic Animals Flee in Terror Before Wrath of Bird.

New York—A dispatch from Elberfeld, Germany, describes a bit of unpremeditated melodrama at a circus. A trained stork entered the lions' arena and, instead of being consumed, spread terror among the tawny monarchs. The heroic beasts fled in terror before the wrath of the bird and had finally to be rescued by the trainer.

Storks appear to occupy a peculiar place in the animal world; it is almost as if they possessed psychic qualities not understood and for that reason humbly respected.

By man storks have been accorded rather a degree of whimsical veneration—especially in those northern countries of Europe where they build their nests high up on the chimney tops and are protrayed by legend as concerning themselves with the arrival of human babies—a caprice of fancy that long had its vogue in many parts of the world, but is, in the present realistic age, seldom invoked.

Aesop's Explanation.

Aesop, by way of proving that "one bad turn deserves another," perhaps explains, in his anecdote of the fox and the stork, why animals look upon this bird as a creature too resourceful to be safely bearded. At least this explanation of Aesop is as good as the next. It seems that—

"A fox one day invited a stork to dine with him, and, wishing to be amused at his expense"—and not realizing how apt storks are at turning tables—"put the soup which he had for dinner in a large flat dish, so that while he himself could lap it up quite well, the stork could only dip in the tip of his long bill.

"Some time after, the stork, bearing his treatment in mind, invited the fox to dinner with him. He, in turn, put some minced meat in a long and narrow-necked vessel, into which he could easily put his bill, while Master Fox was forced to be content with licking what ran down the sides of the vessel.

"The fox then remembered his old trick and could not but admit that the stork had paid him off. 'I will not apologize for the dinner,' said the stork."

Surrounded by Awe.

And since then the stork has never felt called upon to apologize for anything. That may be, in a way, the reason why he is surrounded by so desirable a halo of awe. "Never complain and never explain."

But once, alas, the stork fared ill, indeed, not all his native wisdom and not all the traditional awe being sufficient to save him. Again we are indebted to Aesop:

"A husbandman set a net in his fields to take the cranes and geese which came to feed upon the newly springing corn. He took several, and with them a stork, who pleaded hard for his life on the ground that he was neither a goose nor a crane, but a poor, harmless stork. 'That may be very true,' replied the husbandman, 'but as I have taken you in bad company you must expect to suffer the same punishment.'"

Also on the debit side we find Hans Christian Andersen's report of the vanity of the male stork—his eagerness to be thought capable of providing a sumptuous establishment. One reads:

"In the last house in a little village stood a stork's nest. The mother stork sat in it with her four young ones, who stretched out their heads, with the pointed black beaks, for their beaks had not yet turned red.

"A little way off stood the father stork, all alone, on the ridge of the roof, quite upright and stiff; he had drawn up one of his legs, so as not to be quite idle while he stood sentry. One would have thought he had been carved out of wood, so still did he stand."

Ideal Square Meal

A square meal whose corners won't puncture the walls of your stomach has been the dream of dietitians for years. What is called "the perfect square meal" was recently exhibited in London. This ideal meal, though cold, is said to contain the proper balance of vitamines. The perfect menu, according to the British dietitians responsible for the exhibit, includes cold chicken and egg sauce, new potatoes, salad, corn-flour mold, fruit salad with cream, whole wheat bread and butter and lemonade. The vitamine proportion, the dietitians explain, can be regulated to suit the needs of fat and thin persons.—Path finder Magazine.

IDEA OF STEAMBOAT BELONGED TO FITCH

Belated Honors Paid to Unfortunate Inventor.

In the little town of Bardstown, Ky., a monument was unveiled on May 25 to John Fitch, recognizing him as the inventor of the steamboat.

It was at Bardstown that "poor John Fitch," discouraged by his failure both in this country and in France to get supporters for his invention, committed suicide. That was on July 2, 1798. A long time between that date and May 25, 1927:

The payment of these belated honors may or may not help to rest John Fitch's soul. However, with the unveiling over Fitch's burial place of the monument provided for by appropriation of congress, the right of Fitch to the title of inventor of the steamboat may be considered fixed. Whatever glory properly belongs to Robert Fulton for practical development of the steamboat need not be diminished by giving to Fitch the share due him for the invention.

John Fitch was born on January 21, 1743, in Windsor, Conn. Following a boyhood of practically no educational opportunities, he went to sea when seventeen. Later he worked as clockmaker, brassfounder and silversmith. In the Revolutionary war he was a gunsmith for the American troops, and with them went through the winter at Valley Forge. After the war he was a surveyor and trader in what was then the West. Then came his return to Pennsylvania, where he settled at Warminster, near Philadelphia, and produced, in 1785, his first model of a steamboat. Two years later, on the Delaware river at Philadelphia, he made a succesful trial trip with a boat 45 feet long, 12-foot beam, and 12-inch cylinder engine. During the summer of 1790 he ran a larger boat, carrying passengers, from Philadelphia to Wilmington. That appears to have been the end of his venture. His backers dropped their support of him. In 1793, despairing of further aid in this country, Fitch went to France. But the French revolution was on. Penniless, he worked his way back, and so to Bardstown, where he ended his tragedy of an unappreciated inventor.

Among Fitch's papers now in the Library of Congress are the plans and specifications of his steamboats. In respect of the old controversy whether the invention was Fulton's or Fitch's, it might be noted that a committee of the New York legislature declared in 1817 that Fulton's steamboat was "in substance the invention patented by John Fitch in 1791."

Improved Sundial

Most sundials are more ornamental than practical, for calculations must generally be made to tell the time accurately with them. An indicator designed by Julius Wangenheim, a regent of the University of California, is said to eliminate this objection, registering the hour as closely as a watch and requiring no computation. It is a curved bronze plate so adjusted that it can be set for any latitude. Corrections are worked out with curved lines, and the measurements are indicated for the longest as well as the shortest day. Plans have been made to set replicas of the dial at various places on the university campus, to aid students in reaching their classes on time, and at Mount Hamilton, where astronomers may consult them.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Easy to Attain Long Life

A Korean "holy man," Sai Ki Nan, has been telling Tokyo how to live to be three hundred and fifty years old. He ran across his astounding secret, he says, a generation ago, when he found in some sacred books records of men who lived to be five hundred years old. The reason given for such extraordinary longevity was that these folk eschewed food almost entirely, lived on bark and water and spent their time in study.

Sai Ki Nan, after diligent research, found the right sort of bark, built his hut in the forest and settled down to two hundred and ninety years more. He eats seven little bark cakes a day, sleeps two hours out of the twenty-four, gives himself a daily massage, and has a system of exercises based on Buddhist writings.

Teaching Lip Reading

For the benefit of children whose hearing happens to be defective, it is the custom at present in many states to give those thus afflicted the benefit of some special instruction in lip reading. The best way of handling this problem, it has been demonstrated, is by having teachers who are especially trained to go from school to school for this purpose. The classes are small, usually not more than six or eight students, and the advantages of the plan is that it enables children to continue their regular work in the school classes which suits the parents better than sending them to special schools. It is also more economical from the standpoint of the educational authorities.

Easter Island Statue May Be Earth's Oldest

The world's most ancient statue is to be found outside, not inside, the British museum.

It is said that it took two hundred men from the crew of H. M. S. Topaz, and three hundred natives, to drag the statue from its original site, although it weighs only four tons. It is the work of a race of huge builders and was one of many similar colossal statues, some of them weighing as much as a hundred tons, scattered over Easter Island, in the Pacific.

These hideous images were originally supplied with hats, in some cases weighing another five or six tons, which were red because they were made of tufa or volcanic rock. All the hats have fallen off now and are found lying around the huge statues as though there had been a high wind.

This race of ancient builders left traces in the shape of immense stone monuments right across the Pacific, and many archeologists think that the Island on which these monuments are found is the last remnant left above the surface of a vast submerged continent. There is nothing which fixes the exact period of this achievement, but it is possible that the statues are at least as old as the pyramids of Egypt.

Daddy Evidently Had Some Things to Write

Willie (very seriously)—Papa, I had a strange dream.

Papa—Indeed! What was it?

Willie—I dreamed, papa, that I died and went to heaven; and when St. Peter met me at the gate, instead of showing me the way to the golden street, as I expected, he took me out into a large field, and in the middle of the field there was a ladder reaching up into the sky and out of sight. Then St. Peter told me that heaven was at the top, and that in order to get there I must take the big piece of chalk he gave me and slowly climb the ladder, writing on each rung some sin I had committed.

Papa (laying down his newspaper)—And did you finally reach heaven, my son?

Willie—No, papa, for just as I was trying to think of something to write on the second rung I looked up and saw you coming down.

Papa—And what was I coming down for?

Willie—That's what I asked you, and you told me you were coming for more chalk.—After Dinner Stories.

Wise Mr. Laemmle

To many persons deafness is an affliction but it is one of "Uncle" Carl Laemmle's charms, says Photoplay Magazine.

At his new home in Beverly Hills he frequently sits on the side lines of the tennis courts watching members of the younger generation cavorting while he transacts business with his executives.

The other day a newcomer to his official family showed himself red in the face trying to explain his proposition to Uncle Carl.

"You haven't sound," Mr. Laemmle finally said, mildly. "I usually hear what I want to hear."

Second Half Ends In a Tie

The second half of the Industrial Baseball League ended in a tie when the P. O.-City team sprung a surprise and defeated the U. & D.-Cornell, 7-4, Tuesday evening at the Athletic Field. The loss gave the U. & D.-Cornell a percentage of .833, the same as the West Shore Railroad.

Watson Wheeler, pitcher for the P. O.-City, held the hard-hitting Railroaders to five scattered hits, while his opponent, Phil Peters, was found for seven hits, bunched in three innings.

Errors and poor base running on the part of the Railroaders was a big cause of their defeat. They also missed the services of "Walt" Black, who has been a mainstay of the team all season. Black was injured in a game Monday at Block Park.

"Tom" McGrane was the leading slugger of the evening, getting three timely singles. Sahloff was the big gun on the defense. He went to short center a couple of times to rob the Railroaders of hits.

Both teams tallied in the first inning, the Railroaders once and the P. O.-City men three times, and in the second they scored three more, which proved to be enough to win the game.

Tagging Major League Bases

(By The Associated Press.)

After winding up their final home stand during which they won 17 out of 20 games, the New York Giants were speeding west today for the last of several series that will have much to do with the pennant chances of the club.

The slumping New Yorkers had to let long and John Scott yesterday to beat the Boston Braves, 9-6. Larry Benton and Kent Greenfield started out in a pitching duel but Kent lasted only four innings and Benton was socked in the ninth in favor of Burleigh Grimes. The Giants started fast and had a safe lead until the ninth, when Benton showed signs of weakening. Terry and Hornsby each had three hits.

Pittsburgh held on to first place and a one-game margin over the Giants by beating Cincinnati 5-0. Remy Kremer flashed his old time form in holding the Redlegs to three hits. Only 28 batters faced him and he gave no passes. No Cincinnati runner got beyond first base.

Donie Bush, the Pirate manager, announced that "Kiki" Cuyler, star outfielder, would be kept on the bench until he could satisfy all concerned that he should return to his regular position. Barney Dreyfuss, president of the club, announced that Bush had signed a contract to manage the Pirates next year.

St. Louis and Chicago Cubs were to have played a doubleheader yesterday but rain halted the second game after the world's champions won the opener, 13-1. The St. Louis victory lowered the Cubs into fourth place. McCarthy's club has won only one of the last nine games played. Percy Jones was pounded out of the box in the second inning and Brill Heart, who succeeded him, was ineffective. Bottomley and Lester Bell hit home runs.

Renewed activity in the Ruth-Gehrig home run duel occupied the American League spotlight at Boston, where the Yankees divided a doubleheader with the Red Sox. More than 25,000 fans saw the Bambino pound out his forty-fifth, forty-sixth and forty-seventh home runs of the season. Gehrig delivered his forty-fifth in the fifth inning of the first game, which the Yanks won by a score of 14-2. Ruth made two homers in this game and whacked the next in the ninth inning of the second game, which went to Boston 5-2.

Ruth's first circuit drive of the day cleared the 40-foot wall in center field. It was one of the longest drives ever made by the Babe.

Washington and the Philadelphia Athletics divided a doubleheader. The Nats slugged out a 14-9 win in the first but Eddie Rommel's knuckle ball brought the A's in with a 4-0 decision in the windup. Rommel granted only four hits.

Barrett's home run brought in a 5-4 victory for the White Sox over Detroit. The bases were loaded when the Chicago left fielder cleaned the ball out of the park in the seventh. Lou Blue, Detroit captain, was ordered off the field for disputing a decision at first base.

Gaston pitched the St. Louis Browns to a 7-4 win over Cleveland. Miller, Grant ad Hudlin, paraded to the pitching mound for the Indians and the Brownies nicked the trio for 15 safe hits.

DEMPSEY WILL NOT WORK AGAIN TODAY

Lincoln Fields, Ill., Sept. 7 (AP).—Fresh and chipper, Jack Dempsey had another day of loafing on his hands today, with road work and golf the only tasks assigned by Manager Leo Flynn. He has but six pounds to shed in two weeks, and so his workouts with the mitts are alternated, two days of work and two days of play.

For his first day of rest Manager Flynn even granted him a night off in town, but last night Jack remained at the race track to be ready for his four mile hike before breakfast.

Asked if he had read about Gene Tunney's impressive boxing on his first workouts at Lake Villa, Dempsey said he had no time to read the papers.

"Aside from attending to a few business matters I am concentrating on the fight," Jack said. "It will not make much difference what we do in training. What will count is what we do on the night of September 22. Gene will meet a much better fighter than he whipped at Philadelphia. He will have to be considerably better than he was that night to win. I doubt if he will be."

Tilden Style in Tennis.

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 7 (AP).—America's general style of tennis play will follow closely that of William T. Tilden during the next decade, believes Bob Crosland, Middle Atlantic and also North Carolina State singles champion. A close follower of Tilden's game, Crosland has studied form, control, placements and stroking for years.

When a doctor calls he has a right to see your tongue, but he has to guess what's in your pocketbook.

Chapman Meets Bass on Sept. 12

Contest Recognized as Title Bout by Authorities—Both Youths Have Impressive Records.

Philadelphia, Sept. 7 (AP).—Benny Bass, Philadelphia's fighting son, and Red Chapman, hard-hitting Bostonian, meet here September 12 in a ten-round battle for the vacant world's featherweight championship.

The contest, recognized as a title contest by both the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission and the National Boxing Association, is expected to restore order in featherweight ranks. Conditions in the division have been somewhat chaotic since Louis (Kid) Kaplan abdicated the throne because he was getting too heavy.

Both Bass and Chapman have long and impressive records, although Bass is only 23 and Chapman 26.

Bass is aggressive and a clever boxer, with a fine repertoire of punches. The record of his victories is evidence of the deadly quality of his "sock."

Although the record books do not show them all, Bass has had more than 100 fights in pro ranks and about 30 in the amateur division. His victories include triumphs over Joe Glick, Babe Herman, Leo Kid Roy, Al Corbett, Wilbur Cohen, Billy Kennedy and Lew Mayrs.

Chapman is a sturdy, well-built boxer who can "take it." He is usually at his best at 126 pounds, and has little trouble making weight. His stiff right and left hooks have carried him far on the road to victory in many a fray. He also packs a straight left to good advantage.

Chapman's record includes wins over such opponents as Dick (Honeyboy) Finnegan, Johnny Dundee, Edouard Mascart, Phil McGraw and Babe Herman.

Bass and Chapman have met before. When Kaplan abdicated, Chapman was being groomed to meet him. Months later, Bass was matched with the Boston boy. But the result was inconclusive because Bass was fouled in the first round.

STAGG WRITES BOOK FOR FOOTBALL FANS.

Chicago, Sept. 7 (AP).—Amos Alonzo Stagg, Chicago's "Old Man of the Midway", has written his second book on football. It is entitled "Touchdown" and is designed for fans.

Stagg's first bood, a "Treatise on American Football", was written in collaboration with H. L. ("Doc") Williams, thirty-four years ago, shortly after Stagg came to the University of Chicago as head football coach. It was prepared for coaches and team leaders. This time Stagg has written the history and evolution of the game and its most interesting and spectacular plays. Many of the incidents are from his own career of nearly forty-five years.

JOINS CUBS

Arthur Nehf, hero of Giants' world series triumphs and lately with Cincinnati, has signed with Cubs and hopes to help twirl them into a championship.

(International Illustrated News)

TUNNEY DOES NOT WEAR A HEADGUARD

Lake Villa, Ill., Sept. 7 (AP).—The blow which cut a short gash in Gene Tunney's eyebrow yesterday could have done no damage to the average boxing champion in training, because virtually all of them, especially the heavyweights, have adopted the football headgear to prevent such accidents.

Tunney is unique in refusing to use such a protector, and still he shows no marks, on nose or ears, of his glove profession. It is his theory that the blows of his sparring partners help to toughen the skin of his face and head. Two of his spar mates, Bill Vidabeck and Frank Muskie, wear the headguard but Chuck Wiggins does not.

"If I have to protect myself with a head guard from my sparring partners, to keep them from messing me up, then I will quit," Tunney once said. "They are in there trying, too, but if I cannot keep them from injuring me, then I have little chance against first class opponents."

Pitching Horseshoes.

Chicago, Sept. 7 (AP).—Chicago has taken to the old fashioned sport of horseshoe pitching. Horseshoe "courts" have sprung up in many neighborhoods and men, women and children vie with each other at trying to throw ringers, leaners and whatever else there is in the pitching repertory.

Three Promoters Near Fight Field

Chicago, Sept. 7 (AP).—The three men largely responsible for giving Chicago its first heavyweight championship boxing match can look out the front window of their offices and see across the street the immense stadium where Dempsey and Tunney will fight September 22.

From Twelfth street to Twenty-second street the stadium extends along the center of Grant Park, little more than a block from the most famous thoroughfare in the city, Michigan Boulevard.

Edward J. Kelly, president of the South Park, which granted the use of Soldiers Field to Tex Rickard, has offices hardly more than a stone's throw from the structure.

Rickard's headquarters in the Congress hotel look out over the arena and George F. Getz, the millionaire coal operator, who took up fight promoting to bring the boys to Chicago, can turn in his office chair and look down into the stadium a few blocks away.

The wide spaces of Grant Park's 100-acre stretch held nearly 20,000 parked automobiles for the Army-Navy game last fall, while as many more taxicabs passed in and out of the broad drive. Soldiers Field lies between the two wide boulevards which skirt the lake there, one for north and one for south bound traffic.

All gridders of the championship eleven are requested to attend for much will be planned concerning the coming season.

One of the main features of the gathering will be the selection of a manager in place of Edward Redhead, last year's boss of the team, who has moved to New Jersey.

Some new talent will also be introduced at the meeting as the places vacated by Bill Clarke and Ross Vogt, two valuable men, must be filled. Joe Carroll, Catholic University player, has signified his intention of signing up with the team.

Great interest upon the part of fans is being displayed and it is expected that when the season starts the local gridders will receive good support.

Jones Will Leave Yale

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 7 (AP).—Tad Jones, head football coach at Yale since 1920, will retire at the end of the 1927 season regardless of the degree of success that may come to the sons of Eli on the gridiron this fall.

Close friends of the Yale leader have known for some time that he did not intend renewing the three year coaching contract which expires this fall. It was not until last night, however, that a formal statement from Prof. George H. Nettleton, chairman of the Yale University Athletic Association, made public the fact of the resignation and its acceptance. The demands of Jones's coal business, which was recently incorporated, are understood to have prompted the decision.

No action will be taken toward choosing a successor until the resignation has become effective.

Prize Fighters Held by Police

Omaha, Sept. 7 (AP).—Jack Johnson, former heavyweight champion of the world, W. L. Stribling, the "Georgia school boy", and Leo Diebel of Oklahoma awoke this morning to find themselves behind the cold gray bars of Omaha's city jail.

The three spent the night with police after the Stribling-Diebel bout was stopped by the referee in the sixth round and after Johnson announced to the 5,000 spectators that he could "knock out both Stribling and Diebel in two rounds".

The fight, which was to have lasted ten rounds, was a slow affair throughout. Neither boxer seemed willing to take the offensive and Referee Jimmy Drexel warned them three times not to stall. Finally in the sixth round he stopped the fight, announcing that it was "no contest". When he had finished, Johnson, who was in Diebel's corner, issued a challenge to the two fighters.

Before Johnson could say any more and before the crowd could realize what had happened, police arrested the three men and took them to the police station, where they were booked for "investigation" and held without bond for a hearing today.

Stribling said he hurt his hand in the second round and that this bothered him during the rest of the fight. A police surgeon said, however, that the hand was only slightly bruised.

BOXING PROGRAM AT WOODCLIFF PARK

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Sept. 7.—Thirty-eight rounds of boxing featuring a number of the leading leather pushers in the state, will swing into action here Thursday night at Woodcliff Park in the first of a series of bouts to be staged for the benefit of the Poughkeepsie Industrial League.

Under the sanction of the New York Boxing Commission, the fighters have all been signed and now it appears as if the fans are in for a real treat.

For the main bout Mike Carroll of New York has been matched to meet Jess Stringham of Salt Lake City. Stringham has been here for the past three days finishing his training at Billy Grupp's gymnasium at Clinton Corners and today he looked to be in the pink of condition.

Al Erwin of New York and Johnny La Duca of Brooklyn clash in the semi final of eight rounds while Dave Brown and Raymond Raveria meet in a special six. Billy Ownes, Jack Berlenbach, Lester Kahl, Jerry Sampere have been matched for the prelims which get under way at 8 o'clock.

Griffith Has Praise for College Players

The college baseball player was handed quite a severe rebuke a few years ago by one prominent big league manager and, about the same time, was complimented highly by another.

Clarke Griffith of the Washington club showered out the praise by saying he thought the college player had the better opportunity to cash in on his ability because he thought faster. Ruel, Reeves, McNeely and Hadley are four collegians now drawing pay from Griffith.

RED SOX HURLER GAINS CONTROL

MacFayden Shows Results Carrigan's Teaching.

Fans looking over the American league batting averages have been familiar with the name MacFayden at the head of the list, a position he attained by making a safe hit once in a while when he was in the game. Now young MacFayden is getting some consideration as a pitcher because he hurled a mighty neat game recently against the Cleveland team.

In this day of poor pitching a well-hurled game attracts much attention. MacFayden is a slight-built youngster who is not through growing as yet. Carrigan has been nursing him along in fine style and getting some encouraging signs of pitching from the former school star.

What appeals especially to Carrigan about MacFayden's work is his fine control. In his best-pitched game of the season, that against the Indians, he scattered six hits through nine innings and three of the hits were of the scratchy variety. One base on balls was charged against him.

Jack McCallister said after the game that the youngster showed as fine a sample of control as he had seen this season. He said that all during the game Mac did not give the Indians one good ball to hit at. He had speed, curves and a change of pace that was baffling.

It is said that MacFayden has spent more time developing control than any pitcher on the Red Sox staff. He has taken Carrigan's lessons about control to heart and he will be a good pitcher if Carrigan can get him developed the way he has set out to do it.

Odd Form of "Prayer" Brought Needed Rain

Desperate after a month of drought in what was supposed to be the rainy season, the peasants in Changhsinten recently dressed up two men like fish and marched them down the street, pouring water on them all the way. This is a new method of praying for rain.

It worked, too! For that night Peking and neighboring towns were drenched in a frightful storm. Nothing like it is ever seen in New York. A peculiar sort of lightning, flashing continuously here and there and everywhere, and thunder keeping up a constant "put-putting" sound feature the storm. Lakes come into existence everywhere. The storm seems somehow symbolic of the approach of threatening nationalist troops.

Strangely, the Pekingese prayed for rain in earnest, too. In White Cloud temple, outside Hsipienmen temple, and at Hsiaou Paitou, coolies, old men and priests burned beasts and bowed incessantly. They followed the ancient rain-praying rites.

But the inhabitants of Changhsinten are believed to have found a new method of rain praying in the fish parade. People in Peking had not heard of it before.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Railroaders In Finish Fight

One of the flashiest games of the season is scheduled to be played in the Industrial League Thursday night at the Athletic Field. The opponents will be the U. & D.-Cornell nine and the West Shore team. Both aggregations of railroaders are now tied for first honors in the second half of the league schedule.

The game is scheduled to start at 6 o'clock and no doubt there will be a record crowd to witness the battle for the great honors.

The U. & D.-Cornell team will probably bank on Peters and Dick Williams to do the hurling with Smedes in the position behind the bat. Walt Black, who has hurled several games for the team, is ill and will not be in the game. R. Williams, Bush and Carpenter will be available for mound duty in the West Shore lineup with Shultz as receiver.

him with the present street line of Broadway.

Attorney Isidor Sampson appeared for Roscoe Irwin. He said that Mr. Irwin was not prepared to say that the city had title to the disputed strip of land, and from what he had talked with Mr. Irwin he was of the opinion that Mr. Irwin's views in the matter were the same as those expressed by Mr. Van Wagonen.

Appoints A Committee.

President C. Ray Everett said that the common council representing as it did the entire city desired to vote intelligently on the question and for that reason he would appoint a special committee which would meet with the interested property owners and the corporation counsel and report back at the next meeting of the council its findings in the matter. He appointed as such a committee Alderman Moore, Clare and Sharkey.

City to Issue Note.

Alderman Mann's resolution authorizing the city to issue a note for $6,163.69 covering the amount of the refund to the New York Central Railroad on its special franchise tax, was adopted. The amount will now be paid back into the general fund by the issuance of the note.

Motions and Resolutions.

The following motions and resolutions were introduced and referred to the various city departments:

Alderman Molyneaux — That Fourth avenue be repaired, as it is in very bad condition. DOG'S MANNERS CONVINCE COURT

Proves to Judge's Satisfaction It Was Stolen.

New York.—A Pekingese dog had its day when on the witness stand in the Yorkville court, held by its mistress, Mrs. Ethel Weinhouse, it proved successfully to Magistrate Flood that it belonged to her. The Pekingese cast accusing glances at Joseph Ferretti, thirty-two years old, charged with having taken the dog from Mrs. Weinhouse's apartment, after forcing an entrance, and keeping it till his arrest.

When Mrs. Frances Kneitel, counsel for the defense, argued there was no actual proof of her client's having stolen the dog, it licked its chops, yawned several times and looked disgusted with what apparently seemed to it most utter nonsense.

When Mrs. Weinhouse was asked to give proof of her ownership, the dog licked her hand. She said, "He's mine because I know he's mine," and to substantiate this she said her dog was peculiar in that it had three moles under its chin. She held the animal up to exhibit these tags of ownership.

Counsel for the defense held the dog might have been stolen by some one else and sold to Ferretti and therefore the charge of burglary should be dismissed. The magistrate differed and held the prisoner without bail for the grand jury.

Mrs. Weinhouse said she chanced to see Ferretti holding her dog while standing outside a candy shop and waited until he put the animal down on the sidewalk. Then she went up close and dropped a handkerchief. The dog went to it and took it in its mouth.

She said she demanded the dog, but Ferretti refused. She then sent for the police.

Sentences Boy, 16, to Life as "Dangerous"

Los Angeles.—Durward Wittenmeyer, sixteen years of age, convicted slayer of Mrs. Fannie Weigle of Pomona, was sentenced by Judge Bowron of Superior court to serve from five years to life in San Quentin penitentiary.

Sentence was imposed after the court had denied a plea of Deputy Defender Davis of counsel for the boy to send him to the Preston state school at Ione.

In denying the request Judge Bowron expressed it as his opinion that young Wittenmeyer is a dangerous individual and attempted to attack Mrs. Weigle before beating her to death with an automobile spring leaf.

"The boy is obviously a dangerous character," said Judge Bowron in recommending to the parole board that Wittenmeyer be made to serve a long portion of the term. "He is a menace to human life and safety. It is regrettable, and if science can do anything to cure his condition I am highly in favor of it, but I believe that under present circumstances he should be kept under close observation."

Lost in Mountains, Tot Is Found Unhurt

Stroudsburg, Pa.—Lost in the dense growth of Indian mountain, back of Kresgeville, in the west end of Monroe county, for 21 hours, David, four years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Koch, was restored to his distracted parents by part of a searching party which had scoured the mountain for the little fellow. Notwithstanding he had been alone in the woods overnight, during which a severe thunder shower raged for several hours and rain fell in torrents, he was none the worse for his experience.

His parents and the children went into the mountain for the purpose of hunting wintergreen berries. The children were told to remain at the farm wagon. David, however, wandered away.

At Kresgeville a searching party was formed that hunted till dark. They resumed the search at daybreak and at one o'clock in the afternoon the little boy was discovered sleeping on the porch of an abandoned house. He had lost a shoe in his wanderings. Between 250 and 300 persons were engaged in the search.

Hair Brings Death

Berlin.—Her long hair proved a fatal conductor of electricity to Gretchen Schaefer, a young peasant woman of Stettin. She was struck and instantly killed by lightning which shot down the electric lighting to a lamp, and from there to her hair as she was combing it out.

The first accident occurred on Partition street when it rammed the Pierce Arrow sedan owned by Mrs. Cora Wilson of Montclair, N. Land of the Palms

Harvesting Dates in Sahara Oasis.

Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.

DATE palms now thriving and bearing fruit in the hot desert regions of Arizona and California, some of the most valuable plants were brought from the Jerid, famous "Land of the Palms," a small group of oases situated at the northern edge of the Sahara and distant about 250 miles southwestward from the city of Tunis. The Jerid is reached by means of a railway which crosses southern Tunis from the busy little seaport of Sfax, on the east coast, to the rich phosphate mines of Metlaoui near the Algerian frontier. Southward from Sfax the train passes through a desolate country, wonderfully like the high plains of eastern Colorado and New Mexico. Here an occasional cluster of "gourbis," tents of skins, an occasional flock of multicolored sheep and goats, tended by half-wild Bedouin children, are the only signs of life in the monotonous landscape. The vegetation consists chiefly of brown clumps of coarse grass called "alfa" or "esparto," whose long tough leaves of which are gathered by hand and shipped in bales to Europe for making baskets, straw mats, and paper of fine quality.

From Metlaoui, formerly the terminus of the railway, the line has been extended in recent years all the way to Tozer, first of the important oasis towns. This final stretch is through rolling sands and on either side are the sharp forms of desert mountains, bare and cold of soil and trees. In Tozer lives the French administrator of the whole region. The town is just outside the oasis on higher ground. After leaving its outskirts and crossing a few rods of barren sand, one plunges directly into the palms.

Jungle of Date Palms.

The transition from the blinding sun outside to the cool shade of the gardens is delightful. Each is a jungle of date palms, planted in no apparent order, some so close that the trunks almost touch, and in other places far enough apart to leave room for little patches of vegetables and alfalfa and tender young barley. Beneath the tall palms are other trees—figs, apricots, and olives.

Huge grapevines hang in festoons from the trunks, and long runners of melon and cucumber trail over the ground. Here and there oranges and ruddy pomegranates gleam in their setting of dark glossy foliage, and the jasmine, with its white corollas, stars the semi-twilight. Beds of scarlet peppers glow like fires in the deep shadows among the trees.

It is interesting to watch the harvest which begins in October. Dates grow in large bunches, weighing from 30 to 40 pounds, which hang beneath the crown of leaves on long yellow or orange-colored stalks, hard and polished as ivory. An expert workman, known as the "gelan," climbs to the top of the palm, gripping the scaly trunk with his bare toes. He is armed with a "mengel," an iron knife, having a heavy serrated blade at right angles to the shank, which is set in a wooden handle.

Severing the stalk with a stroke of his knife, he gives the heavy cluster to the man who straddles the trunk just under him. It is then passed from hand to hand by men and boys who cling to the tree, one below the other, until it reaches the ground.

Only the best varieties of dates are picked thus carefully; for the ordinary sorts it suffices to toss the cluster to the ground, where they are caught in sheets. They are then packed in skins or baskets to be kept for local consumption, or they are exchanged for wheat and barley, which the nomads of the high central plateaus of Tunis and Algeria bring down to the oases in the fall on the backs of their camels.

The fine Deglet Noor dates, of which the Jerid exports from one to two million pounds every year, are prepared for shipment before leaving the gardens. No curing is found necessary.

Has Its Traffic Problems.

During the harvest season the Jerid gardens have traffic problems as marked as those in many a western city. One can make but slow progress because of the crowds that throng the little paths. Here and there at every, where two roads cross, are stentoned venders of "broad beans." The beans, almost as large as chestnuts and not unlike them in flavor, are boiled in petroleum tins over charcoal fires and are sold hot to laborers and idlers.

In the cool twilight one can appreciate the full beauty of the oasis. The level rays of the setting sun light up the palm tops, turning the dull purples and maroons of the fruit clusters to glowing crimson and their stalks to burnished gold. Against the clear beryl green of the eastern sky the feathery leaf crowns are silhouetted. Overhead a star or two begins to glisten in the azure that is fast changing to dusky violet.

The Jerid oases are four in number. Tozer and Nefta, which comprise about 6,000 acres each, are the largest. They are separated one from another by a few miles of sandy desert, where stunted gray bushes are the only vegetation during the greater part of the year. Immediately behind the oases rises a steep bluff, which here forms the northern boundary of the Sahara. The date gardens occupy a gently sloping shelf about one mile wide between this and the Shott el Jerid, a great shallow pond, usually covered with a glittering crust of salt and containing water for only a brief time after the infrequent winter rains. It is one of a chain of such dry lakes that stretches from near the eastern coast of Tunis to the Oued Rir country, a few miles south of Biskra, in Algeria.

There are said to be nearly one million date trees in the Jerid. Each oasis is a dense forest of which the ownership is much divided. The individual holdings range in size from a few square rods to several acres and are separated by "tabias," walls of dried mud, surmounted by a palisade of the thorny palm leaves.

Water Supply Abundant.

Numerous springs, gushing forth at the base of the escarpment that shelters the oases from the north winds, furnish an abundant and constant supply of water for irrigation. At Nefta the springs are situated in a deep basin, of which the sides are much higher than the tallest palm in the beautiful grove that covers its floor. This is the "Ras el Ain" (head of the spring), which the French call the "Corbeille" or basket.

At Tozer and at Nefta the water of the springs is gathered into one large canal. It is then diverted by means of dams situated at convenient points into the irrigating ditches that penetrate every corner of the oasis.

More than one hundred distinct varieties of dates are grown in these four small oases. There is a bewildering amount of diversity in the shape, color, and flavor of the fruits. Some are round as apples, others egg-shaped, other finger-shaped. They range in size from that of a small hazelnut to the bigness of a man's thumb. When ripe they are of every imaginable hue, from golden brown to prune purple, and even jet black.

The towns of the Jerid are situated on higher ground just outside of the oases. They thus escape to some extent the malaria that lurks in the gardens, where frequent irrigation keeps the soil constantly moist. Even the gardeners dwell mostly in the villages and trudge every morning to the scene of their labors. Only during the ripening season, when the fruit of the choice varieties must be guarded against thieves, men camp among the trees in little palm-leaf tents, which are sometimes elevated on posts at a corner of the wall to afford a better lookout.

Weather to Order

Equipment for washing, circulating and keeping the air at the proper temperature is installed in buildings of the National Zoological park at Washington to protect the health of 2,000 animals and birds, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. In most of the houses, conditions like those of an ideal June day are maintained with a temperature of 68 degrees, relative humidity of 49 to 45 per cent and the air slowly moving. The installation has made possible the safekeeping of animals that ordinarily would not thrive in American climate.

Crowds Expected Here Saturday

Full Program of Exercises in Connection With the Sesquicentennial of the Birth of New York State—Admission Free to All.

Kingston is preparing a royal welcome for the thousands upon thousands of visitors from all over New York state who will be here Saturday to help honor the city, which is the birthplace of the political beginnings of what is now the great Empire State. It was at Kingston, the first capital of New York State, that, in 1777, the first constitution was adopted, the first governor was inaugurated, the first supreme court met and the first session of the state legislature was held. All these important events will be fittingly celebrated by addresses and a costumed historical drama.

The state of New York is paying the entire expense of this celebration. Admission is free to the Kingston Driving Park where the addresses will be given and where the historical drama will take place. Busses will run to the grounds.

The following is the program for the day's celebration:

9:30 a. m.—Visits to historical shrines in Kingston and vicinity.

10:20 a. m.—Rededication of Governor Clinton's tomb in the Old Dutch Churchyard. Governor Smith will place first wreath.

11:00 a. m.—Dedication of new $100,000 State Museum by Mrs. Alton B. Parker on Senate House grounds.

12:00 Noon—Luncheon to distinguished guests at Hotel Stuyvesant. Speech of welcome by Mayor E. J. Dempsey.

2:00 p. m.—Addresses in Kingston Driving Park by Governor Smith, Senator Wadsworth, Speaker of the Assembly Joseph A. McGinnies, Senator Knight.

4:00 p. m.—Sesquicentennial Historical Drama, an impressing and picturesque pageant with hundreds in costume, depicting great historical events which took place in Kingston in 1777.

8:00 to 10:00 p. m.—Concert by West Point Band on Academy Green.

As one English historian has said, "If you want to understand American Colonial history, go to Kingston." That is what thousands of people from all over New York state are going to do next Saturday. The celebration, the most important held by New York state, is being extensively advertised by the state which will account for the large influx of visitors anxious to learn more about our Colonial and present day history.

An important and pleasing feature of the day's entertainment will be the music furnished by the West Point Band, under the personal direction of Major W. J. Mills. This is the same famous band which plays for the West Point Cadet Corps. This band, together with the Citizens' Band, under the baton of Harry G. Meisenhelder, will furnish music during the historical drama.

Admission is free to all.

Everybody is invited and urged to attend all these gatherings on Saturday. To do so will give each one a deeper understanding of the manner in which the great Empire State began its life, and it will bring a sense of pride to each one to know the important part Kingston played in giving birth to the infant state and helping to nourish it until it has grown to its present huge proportions.

Nagpur, British India, Sept. 7 (AP).—Twenty-two people are stated by the authorities to have been killed and more than 100 injured as the result of Hindu-Moslem rioting here.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Sept. 7 (AP).—The stock market today gave another impressive demonstration of strength. The average of 20 leading industrial shares was lifted to a new record high while the average of 20 leading rails was elevated to around the highest level since the war, with about 50 individual issues breaking through to new high levels for the year, or longer.

A wave of selling for both accounts swept through the market at mid-day but offerings were well absorbed and the market quickly headed upward again under the leadership of the motors and specialties.

Gains in the industrial list ran from one to six points in the active issues, although a few stocks recorded even larger advances. Several strong spots developed in the oil, textile, leather, public utility and copper shares.

Expectations of a further increase in freight traffic this month attracted new buying into the railroad shares which moved upward under the leadership of New York Central.

Banks called about $5,000,000 in loans during the morning, but call money continued in plentiful supply at the renewal figure of 3½ per cent.

Volcano's Last Effort

Steam in occasional hissing jets, the last breath of the once raging volcanic vent, still melts the snow among the glaciers at the top of Mount Rainier, according to Dr. F. E. Matthes of the United States geological survey. This great cone-shaped mountain, which now supports one of the most magnificent single-peak glacier systems in the world, was in long past ages a volcano. As the season advances the great rivers of ice are beginning to flow more rapidly, until during the warmest weather they will move at a rate of from twelve to eighteen inches a day. This does not mean, however, that they extend their range farther down the slopes, for they melt off as fast as they flow forward, and sometimes faster. Some of the glaciers have undergone notable losses the last thirty or forty years.

What the Aviators Are Doing Today

(By The Associated Press)

Old Glory, en route to Rome, flashed an SOS shortly before daylight. Then came complete silence. She was estimated about 590 miles off Newfoundland. Nearby steamers reported the night very dark, with big waves and bad wind. Several steamers started for rescue with nearest one estimated about 85 miles away.

The Sir John Carling hopped for the transatlantic flight from Harbor Grace, N. F., to London at 7:25 a. m. eastern standard time.

The Royal Windsor, Windsor, Ont., to Windsor, England, started before daylight from Old Orchard, Maine, for Harbor Grace.

The Pride of Detroit reached Rangoon, Burma, on round the world flight. The Columbia's flight from England to New York was postponed until tomorrow.

The flying Whale, at Corunna, Spain, set tomorrow for resumption of its flight westward across the Atlantic.

Carling Plane Makes New Start

Harbor Grace, N. F., Sept. 7 (AP).—The plane Sir John Carling bound from London, Ont., to London, England, hopped off from the airport here at 7:25 a. m. today, eastern standard time.

Captain Terry Tully is pilot and Lieutenant James Medcalf navigator of the Carling. The plane on its first attempt to hop from London, Ont., was forced back by bad weather.

On the second attempt she reached a point estimated by the aviators as well beyond Prince Edward Island, but encountered such heavy fog that they feared they could not locate Harbor Grace where they had arranged to stop for a new supply of gasoline. They flew back over New Brunswick and finding clear weather in Aroostook county, Maine, landed in a hay field in the town of Washburn last Thursday night.

Three Bandits Taken Back To Delaware County

Where They Will Be Held There on Robbery Charge—No New Developments—Two Unknown Men in Accident at Suffern.

John Duffy, John Handren and Conrad Langschultz, three of the five men who held up and robbed the Archer livery stable at Fleischmanns Sunday evening, were taken to Delaware county this morning from the Ulster county jail by Sheriff A. L. Austin and a deputy. The three will be held there on a robbery charge.

Langschultz, who gave his address as 525 West 17th street, New York, and his occupation as an electrician, is said to be the leader of the gang and the man who planned the hold-up. According to a story he told he does not know anything about the matter except that he was held up by the gang at Newburgh and compelled to drive them to Fleischmanns at the point of a gun. This story, however, is discredited and it is believed that he and two companions stopped in Newburgh and waited for the other two members of the gang from New York to meet them there and that the five proceeded from Newburgh to Fleischmanns at the direction of Langschultz. The two men who shot their way to freedom when cornered at Mt. Tremper by State Troopers Simpson and Drumm and Deputy Sheriff Segelken, are believed to be the two men for whom they waited at Newburgh.

No New Developments.

There were no new development in the case during Tuesday night or today. Several clews were reported but none of them resulted in any definite knowledge being secured. The two men who stole E. Otis Van Aken's car from the City Garage early Tuesday morning after assaulting the nightman following a thrilling escape in a stolen car from Mt. Tremper and a clever getaway from the local police and members of the sheriff's force, were reported to have been seen in several places but no real knowledge has been secured of where they are or where they went after taking the Van Aken car.

Sheriff Rice, the local police and the State Troopers have been watching all roads and last night roads were covered in the hope that if the men were in hiding they would make an attempt to escape under cover of darkness.

May Have Been In Accident.

A report was received that a Studebaker car in which two men were riding had met with an accident near Suffern. It was thought the men might be the ones wanted and a check-up is being made. One of the men was killed and the other is in a hospital. The coroner of Rockland county is cooperating and is endeavoring to learn the identity of the two men.

The three men who were captured were finger printed and their history taken at the sheriff's office last night. During the evening a large crowd gathered in front of the court house in hopes that the two at large would be captured and brought to the jail.

Monday night when word was received that the two men were coming to Kingston in a stolen car the police and the sheriff's men were on the job at the bridge. In the brief time which the police had to make arrangements it was agreed that a man stationed at the bridge was to give a warning, when the car approached the bridge and men stationed on the viaduct and in the city were to attempt to halt the car but the big Rickenbacker car roared in town at such a speed that the warning was useless and although the police riot gun was trained on the road it could not be used for fear of killing the child which had been kidnapped when the car was stolen. As the men drove through the city the child was seen by several people and at one time the bandits held the child in front of them to prevent shots being fired at them.

Attempted to Take Buick.

Before taking the Chrysler car of Mr. Van Aken the men attempted to get away with a Buick car of R. Frederick Chidsey which was parked near the door of the City Garage. They started the motor but in attempting to drive out they found a supporting post in the way and in an effort to make a quick get away they scraped the paint from the side of the car. Not being able to make a quick getaway in the Buick they jumped to the Chrysler which stood alongside and which was more easily driven from the garage.

The story that the men were seen on Flatbush avenue Tuesday morning appears to be without foundation as the woods in the neighborhood were searched and no trace found of the men where it was said they entered the woods. During the day the woods were thoroughly beaten and no trace found of either the men or the car. The fact that the car has not been seen since it left the City Garage leads the authorities to believe that the men made a getaway from the city in the car. Experienced as the bandits seem to be they will probably abandon that car and pick up another. For that reason the accident at Suffern is being thoroughly investigated although the car involved was a Studebaker.

Rutgers Head Here Sunday

Dr. John M. Thomas Will Speak at First Dutch Church Sunday at Union Service of the Uptown Churches.

On Sunday evening, Sept. 11, a union service of the uptown churches has been arranged to be held in the First Dutch Church at 7:30 o'clock. The speaker at that mass meeting will be Doctor John Martin Thomas, President of Rutgers University.

Inasmuch as the religious services at the inauguration of Governor George Clinton in 1777 were held in the old First Church, the ministerial brethren feel that the churches, always in the van of every movement for the advancement of the civic and moral as well as the spiritual life, should enter, as churches, into the splendid spirit of this celebration by meeting in the church with which is bound up the history of Kingston.

This service is to begin at 7:30. The public is cordially invited and urged to attend.

Famous Quartet At First Dutch

"Gloria Trumpeters" Who Play Regularly at Dr. Cadman's Sunday Afternoon Service Will Be at First Dutch Church Sunday Morning—Will Also Play for Sunday School.

On next Sunday morning, at 10:30, the famous "Gloria Trumpeters," the brass quartet that is heard at Dr. S. Parkes Cadman's Bedford Branch service, in Brooklyn, Sunday afternoons, will be guest musicians at the First Dutch Church having been engaged early in the summer. They will play several selections in the church service and are to be with the Bible school at the annual rally service at 12 o'clock. It was through the Bible school that the Gloria Trumpeters were procured and only because their regular services in Brooklyn do not begin on September 11th.

The place of this ensemble in the musical world is unique. The trumpets adequately fill the largest auditorium and are adaptable also for concert, church or drawing room. It will be a privilege to hear this quartet in Kingston.

Its members are, Louise Gura, Katherine Williams, Cora Roberts and Mabel Coapman. The service begins promptly with Gounod's "Sanctus" with organ accompaniment. Sullivan's "The Lost Chord" will be another number, and Beethoven's "Minuet in G," the offertory. Interested friends are welcome.

The quartet leaves immediately after dinner for Newark, N. J., where they play in the evening.

TEAMSTERS AND TRUCKMEN STRIKE IN NEW YORK

New York, Sept. 7 (AP).—Between 6,000 and 7,000 teamsters and truckmen went on strike today in an effort to enforce demands for a wage increase and shorter hours.

A union representative announced that the strike would not affect express companies or the movement of produce to and from the central markets, but might spread to longshoremen.

An agreement providing for an average wage of $40 a week and a nine hour day expired September 1, and the truckmen seek a new agreement providing for an average wage of $45 a week and an eight hour day.

ELEANOR GUNN ON FASHIONS

The Long Chain of Amethyst or Topaz Bids for Favor and Is Sponsored by Patou.

New York.—In the attempt to feminize fashions, which seems to be the basic idea this season, all sorts of developments occur that not only break the severity of the silhouette, but soften trimming details.

The surplice line, always liked, but frequently out of favor, is being revived, often plus soft revers, which may serve as an excuse for introducing a contrasting fabric or color or provide a background for trimming. The model sketched makes excellent use of the opportunity that the vagaries of fashion now affords, by employing steel beads. How very long it is since steel beads were the vogue! In this instance, they intensify a royal blue silk crepe. The word silk is not superfluous, since the market seems flooded with all manner of wool, as well as silk crepes. How smart wool has become, after a season when it was accorded only half-hearted indorsement!

Surplice Collar and Revers, and Panels of Side Pleats, Characterize This Fall Model of Royal Blue Sheer Crepe. Steel Beads and Silk Floss Embroidery Simulate a Hip Yoke and Edge the Collar.

But to revert to the interest steel provides, there are many metal trimmings used for both day and evening dresses, and, one must be careful also to include, for hats as well. Patou decries the habit that even the most elegant women have acquired, that of wearing imitation jewels—costume jewelry, as is the modern name. On the occasion of his premiere, he elected to introduce long chains of topaz, amethysts, and carnelian, as well as pendants blazing with aquamarine executed in modernistic settings.

What may be the result of this effort, it is, of course, much too early to tell. It seems, though, as if the world might easily be pearl-weary. Since long chains are useful in extending the lines of the figure, they appear to be revived at a time when they may be doubly helpful in offsetting the effect of the broken and often raised waist-line.

If God made woman beautiful He made her so to be looked at—to give pleasure to the eyes which rest upon her—and she has no business to dress herself as if she were a hitching post or to transform that which should give delight to those among whom she moves into a ludicrous caricature of a woman's form.—J. G. Holland.

EATING TOO MUCH?

Those who live in the open, doing hard work, create a need for food. Because of their active life, the appetite demands sustaining food and the body is able to take care of it. It is the man or woman whose condition in life prevents much activity who requires direction in the selection of their food. Take note of the over-plump man or woman at any table; their chief food is protein, such as meats, eggs, starchy foods and rich pastries which contain large amounts of fat and sugar but are lacking in mineral elements and vitamines.

It is far safer, more comfortable and enjoyable to restrict one's appetite for such foods before constipation, rheumatism, dyspepsia and kindred ills become settled, than to overcome them after the harm is done.

It is a safe rule to follow, that the one who does office or indoor work, with little exercise, should eat half as much as the outdoor worker. It is better to cut down on the supply, eating what one likes, providing it is a well-balanced diet, than to fast as so many do.

Protein is the one food principle which we need and cannot do without, as it repairs waste and builds muscle.

The sedentary worker should keep in mind that he needs proteins but they should be of a kind that is readily digested and converted into body-proteins. He should eat sparingly of meat, eggs, beans and these foods should be added to the diet, only to give attractiveness to root, leafy and milk products as well as fruit.

Frequent weighing will give one an idea if the weight is right. If there is a constant increase in weight, the amount of food should be further cut down.

With an apple or orange daily, fresh fruit of other kinds in season, one will avoid autointoxication or irritating bacteria in the digestive tract.

Girl Clerk Becomes Acting Head of Bank

Raleigh, N. C.—Advancement to officialdom in a small-town bank was once denied Miss Bertha Hellen by its president because she was a woman.

Being an ambitious clerk she immediately resigned. Today she is assistant and acting cashier of one of the largest banks in North Carolina. She was recently elected the state's leading business woman.

Bank officials, she says, are generally not in favor of pushing their woman employees into executive positions. For this reason women have to work harder than men to succeed. Because they possess "tact," personality, honesty, loyalty and care for details, all important banking "requisites," she believes the day of woman bankers is dawning.

Odd Contradictions in Famous German Writer

Made miserable by fundamental contradictions in character, Heinrich Heine, a genius best remembered for his poems, cried: "I am tragedy—I am comedy." Though he was probably the greatest German poet of his century, the author of "The Lorelei" was constantly appalled by the vastness of his vision and sought a firmer footing on other paths of expression. When he could curb his poesy he was a splendid journalist.

While he hated despotism he was an ardent admirer of Napoleon. As a cynic his laughter still is remembered for its hilarity at sentiment, yet he was such a sentimentalist that his spurned love for his cousin gave exquisite wings to many a poem. He wrote history without method and philosophy with no crystallized philosophy of his own. The capricious quality that pervades all his writings lurks in even his tenderest poems. He shifts from intense passion to careless mockery.

His life, until his invalidism, was one agony of being jerked from poesy to materialism and back again. Yet when he was made helpless by paralysis this strange man of contradictions, who had been impatient and irritable in health, showed an extraordinary endurance and cheerfulness in the long years he spent on what he termed his "mattress grave." He died in 1856 and lies buried in Paris.—Kansas City Star.

Bottomless Well

One of the most curious and most interesting natural wonders to be found in Arizona is Montezuma well.

This strange lake is located about the center of the state in an isolated community. The well itself is some 200 yards across and, as far as it has been possible to determine, is bottomless.

The water in the well is absolutely clear and pure. It maintains a certain level all the time, which is unaffected by the dryness or wetness of the season. The walls that rise precipitously above these clear waters and reflect themselves in them were at one time the homes of a populous community. For this is the very center of what was once the cliff dwellers' stronghold in Arizona, a primitive people in the midst of civilization.

Vital Part of Tree

The stem of a tree, also called trunk and bole, is the main axis extending from the roots to the crown, or to the tip in case of an unbranched stem. Tree stems range from long to short, straight to crooked, and from erect to prostrate. An examination of a cross-section of a stem will show bark, wood, and pith, says the American Tree association. In the central part of the stem is the pith. About it is the wood, which in many trees can be divided into the darker heartwood and the lighter sapwood. Between the wood and the bark is a thin layer known as the cambium. This is the most vital part of a tree, for it is here that all new wood and bark are made up.

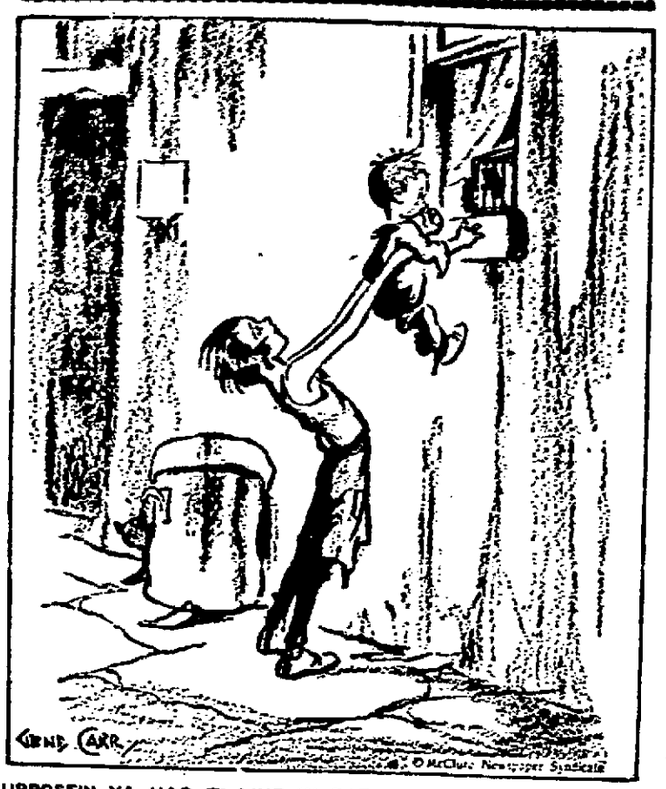
JUST HUMANS
By GENE CARR



"SUPPOSE'N YA HAD T' LIVE IN DAT CAGE? DEN YA'D CHANGE YA TUNE!"

Mother's Cook Book

"A commonplace life, we say and sigh,
Yet why do we sigh as we say?
The commonplace sun in the commonplace sky
Makes up the commonplace day.
The moon and the stars are commonplace things;
The flower that blooms and the bird that sings;
But sad were the world and dark the lot,
If the flower failed and the sun shone not,
And God, who sees each separate soul,
Out of commonplace lives makes a beautiful whole."

THE DINNER

FOR the beginning of a dinner there is nothing quite so refreshing as a fruit cocktail. With fresh citrus fruits as well as the luscious melons, one need never fear monotony.

Cantaloupe Cocktail.

Cut the edible centers of muskmelon with a small potato scoop into balls. If the fruit and glasses are both chilled, the fruit is much more appetizing. Pour over a sauce which has been made and chilled as follows: Take the juice of a lemon, a quarter of a cupful of water and half a cupful of sugar; boil for ten minutes until a heavy sirup is made. Chill, add a tablespoonful of canton ginger finely minced and a tablespoonful or two of the sirup.

Lemon sauce with a sprig of mint or a mint sauce strained and a little lemon sirup added with a fresh sprig of mint to top the fruit, is especially good with muskmelon. Watermelon is so pretty served this way with an orange sauce.

Chicken With Asparagus.

Cut up a fat chicken and stew until tender, saving the broth. Cook a bunch or two of asparagus or use the canned; cook noodles in the chicken broth, with some of the asparagus water. Have all hot, put a layer of noodles on a serving table, over this a layer of buttered asparagus and on top, the chicken, which has been well seasoned and all bones removed. Celery is especially good with this dish in place of asparagus. Cook it in the chicken broth until tender before cooking the noodles. Keep all the ingredients hot in double boilers until ready to serve. One good-sized chicken with three or four bunches of celery will serve quite a large company. The noodles and celery are so well seasoned with the chicken that a small portion of the latter is all that is needed.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT
By F. A. WALKER

IN ANOTHER'S PLACE

WHEN in a moment of excitement or envy you incline to assail another's good name, or question his or her acts which seem to you unreasonable, hold your tongue.

A mischievous word hastily spoken is like a little spark, capable of causing a great conflagration, irreparable loss and unspeakable sorrow.

To blurt out the first cruel thought that comes to your mind in a burst of sudden heat is a fearful thing to do.

It is an evidence of an inherit weakness in the moral fiber and proves your unfitness for leadership.

At one outburst of temper if you should happen to be seen or overheard by your employers, you shatter your own good record and spoil a perfectly bright future, simply by giving vent to spleen.

When the impulse comes to malign co-workers or speak ill of superiors, however much you may wish to override them, hold your horses and drive carefully.

There is danger ahead.

Thousands have gone over the fatal precipice for similar recklessness, when they imagined themselves secure.

Put yourself in the place of the person whom you are seeking to humiliate and overthrow. You know nothing about his or her trials, impediments, deprivations or sorrows, and you have no royal privilege to enter the heart-sanctuary and expose it to a vulgar gaze.

Put yourself in place of an overwrought typist who is doing her utmost to support aged parents; put yourself in the place of a troubled employer who lies awake nights from thinking of pressing obligations; put yourself in the place of the man that runs the elevator, the scrub woman with her bent body and gnarled purple hands.

To seek to exalt yourself by contrast with such people, for no other reason than petty pride or jealousy is not only exceedingly discourteous but grossly uncharitable.

Don't hand out sighs and tears while you can scatter smiles and sunshine.

It is an understood thing in the game of life that while the hot-headed and uncharitable are pulling down reputations of others, the person who puts himself in the place of the striving, who is considerate and kindly in words and acts, yet is awake to his own opportunity, is the individual who eventually rises to eminence and remains there.
